Contra Costa County Sheriff's deputies examine the wreckage where two persons were found in the aftermath of yesterday's mid-air collision. Both planes were Cessna 150's.

San Ramon mid-air crash kills 3

SAN RAMON — A Lafayette man and two other persons were killed Thursday afternoon when two single-engine planes collided over the Sunrise Subdivision here, smashing one to pieces in midair.

The accident happened less than a mile from the spot of a similiar mid-air crash three years ago in which two persons were killed.

Authorities said Richard Merrick, 27, of 1115 Camino Vallecto, Lafayette, and Alan Roberts, 36, of Fremont, were killed in the crash. The name of the third victim, a 22-year-old Iranian man, was not released, pending notification of next of kin.

Merrick, a flight instructor, was a passenger in the plane piloted by the third victim.

The second plane, flown by Roberts, disintegrated, scattering debris over a 20-acre area.

Patricia Boom, 2567 Shadow Mountain Drive, said she was watching a group of children when she heard a "splush" sound.

"It wasn't an explosion, not a hard sound. I immediately looked up, and saw a tremendous amount of small pieces of debris. They weren't falling down fast."

Boom said she saw just one plane, and thought it had struck a flock of birds. Only later did she realize that the debris she saw was the second plane.

"The plane (the second one) was still in the air. It started to go straight down. I thought to myself, 'My God,' he's going into the ground,' but he caught control and leveled it off."

The pilot apparently was unable to control the plane and it crashed into a field.

There were unconfirmed reports that the planes were from the Sierra Academy of Aeronautics, with headquarters at the Oakland International Airport.

Sheriff's Captain Harry Derum said "one plane had a student who was soloing. The other had an instructor and a student. Both planes were Cessna 150s."

Derum said both planes were flying out of Oakland when they crashed in and near an orchard close to Sunrise Subdivision. There was no fire.

Derum noted the area is a favorite training site for planes flying out of Hayward and Oakland airports.

The Hayward Federal Aviation Administration office said one plane's number was N714PK and the other was 5456Q.

The location of Thursday's crash was not far from another fatal accident Jan. 17, 1974, involving two planes owned by the Sierra Academy.

A report from the National Transportation and Safety Board at that time indicated a commercial pilot was learning to fly on instruments — without visual reference to the ground — when two planes collided. Two persons in one plane were killed, but two others in the second were able to land their craft without serious injuries.

Castlewood rallies to solve sewer woe

Castlewood property owners already have taken steps to correct a host of problems dumped on their sewage treatment plant by the Alameda County Division of Environmental Health.

But the long range solution — either a new plant or connection to Valley Community Services District — will be tackled in the immediate future.

"We're doing everything within our power to comply with county officials," club manager Bill Lovens told The Times. A sub-committee of the Castlewood Property Owners Association will "study future avenues for a long run solution. Right now, we're pretty much on top of the situation."

County health officials last month cited a handful of "deficiencies" at the plant that effectively freezes all building starts.

Association members, living with a 24-year-old plant built to treat 35,000 gallons of sewage per day but now handling an estimated 80,000 gallons, must choose between a new plant, or connection to VCSD.

"I seriously doubt the plant could be renovated to treat the existing load," environmental health director Gerald Winn said, "let alone any further connections."

"In the long run, we have a number of options available," Lovens said. "But it would be best to get out of the sewer business. We don't belong in it. It's a hand-me-down from the Hearst area" when the wealthy scion held court from her woodside mansion.

"We don't want to spend a bundle of money for a new treatment plant and have the regional board (the RWQCB) come down and say 'You will hook up to VCSD!' " he added.

Castlewood property owners are in a special assessment district that pays for the West Pleasanton Sewer Line from Castlewood to the VCSD plant. Connection would require 2,000 to 3,000 feet of pipe and a pumping station near the country club, according to Pleasanton engineer Don Sooby.

But VCSD, as everyone knows, has no sewe permits to issue.

How, then, would VCSD accept a Castlewood connection? The legalities are muddled.

"If Castlewood wants to come to our plant . . . they will have to come through the City of Pleasanton and pay their fees," VCSD General Manager Paul Ryan said.

While part of the district's grant is to "get the fringes of Pleasanton out of archaic sewage treatment and into a sophisticated plant," VCSD "can't just be ordered, 'carte blanche,' to do it," he said.

"The regional board should be dealing with the city, and the city should be dealing with us."

Castlewood is calculated in the controversial LAVWMA "super sewer" pipeline, according to acting Pleasanton City Manager Alan Campbell.

"Once VCSD gains the capacity, Castlewood would have to pay the connection fees (to VCSD) and hook up," he said. The exclusive hillside area would not have to deal through the city.

"They're like anybody else in the VCSD district. They'd have to go to them. But I don't know if anybody could force them to do it."

Meanwhile, the RWQCB "encouraged" connection with VCSD, but has not mandated it. Nor does the board expect to, according to a spokesman.

The board is reviewing the Castlewood plant and will issue new guidelines on the treated waste.

In any case, "there will be a prohibition on discharge for that area," according to the RWQCB spokesman, and that means evaporation ponds with no dumping into the nearby Alameda Creek.

"We won't tell them what to do, we'll just tell them what standards they have to meet. How they do it is up to them."

Feud brews on Valley's future plan

Alameda County Bureau

OAKLAND — The long, bitter feud between Livermore's established ranchers and "intellectuals" at the Lawrence Livermore Laboratory broke into full bloom yesterday at the shortest hearing to date over the county's general plan amendment for the Valley.

As usual, the debate centered on Harlan Geldermann's proposed "New Town" in the Las Positas Valley.

Two more meetings have been set, a 7:30 p.m. public hearing at Harvest Park Elementary School in Pleasanton, and a promised "summation" before county supervisors at 9 a.m., July 28 at the County Administration Building in Oakland.

Supervisor Joseph Bort pledged the July meeting to "wrap it up. Have nothing but the Valley general plan discussion."

"We could get along with (Livermore) in the days before the Lab," said Alvin Jensen, a native and life long Valley rancher.

The "intellectuals out there" ruined things, he said.

The "northside" has always been the "underdog" to those south of I-580, he claimed.

The 9,000 acre Las Positas Valley, where Geldermann would put some 15,000 homes housing 45,000 people, won't "scour a plow," according to the rancher.

Foster City across the bay is a "New Town" that "hasn't hurt San Mateo County. I see nothing wrong with it," he added.

Ex-mayor warns taxpayers on fairgrounds sewer cost

PLEASANTON — Now is the time to make sure that local taxpayers are not stuck for an estimated $250,000 to $300,000 in future Alameda County fairgrounds sewage treatment bills, according to former mayor Robert Pearson.

Pearson, who played a big role in drafting an agreement with VCSD in 1974 over the phaseout of the Sunol Sewer treatment plant, noted that the amount of sewage at the fairgrounds could have a big impact on the amount of money Pleasanton will pay VCSD in sewer connection fees when the new plant opens.

"I was the one who inserted the formula about payments and if the fair sewage is figured into the formula, it means an extra $200,000 in connection fees that the city will have to pay VCSD," said Pearson.

The extra sewage from the fair, estimated at a peak of more than 300,000 gallons per day according to a 1976 survey, also would mean an extra cost of $75,000 in Pleasanaton's share of the LAVWMA pipeline.

The fairgrounds signed a contract with the city in 1958 which states the city will pick up the cost of maintaining the fair's main sewer lines. The fair has never paid a sewer service charge or a connection fee and since it is tax - exempt, it has never paid taxes to the city, either.

This especially galls Pearson. At least the major industries in town have paid connection fees and/or sewer service charges, said Pearson. But the county fair has had a free ride and unless the city does something about the costly hookup to VCSD, the city taxpayers will wind up subsidizing more fair expenses, said Pearson.

Another way to handle it would be for the fair to be required to negotiate directly with VCSD, said Pearson.

However, this appears impossible for a couple of reasons. One is that the LAVWMA pipeline will take payment only from the dischargers, and that means Pleasanton, according to Acting City Manager Alan Campbell. Also, the city has to service the sewer lines which means it is the only agency that can negotiate with the fairgrounds, said VCSD General Manager Paul Ryan.

Livermore's new budget shows boost

LIVERMORE — A preliminary city budget of $15,878,032 for next year was unveiled yesterday by City Manager Bill Parness, who noted decreasing bond debts could lower the city's tax rate by one penny to $1.50.

The bottom line represents a 55.8 per cent increase over the $10.2 million funding for the current year, but Parness said most additional spending would be in capital improvements for a water treatment plant expansion. Revenues for that project are expected from federal and state grants.

Department requests for 32 additional personnel were "absolutely impossible," but Parness said 8.5 new employes would be recommended as absolutely necessary. Some would be funded by federal grants and some were expected to bring in more revenues than their salaries through a building fee collection system slated for city council review Monday.

General government funding request is up 8.6 per cent to $5.8 million; municipal enterprise and trust funds are up 13.9 per cent to $2.3 million; and capital improvements is up 178.2 per cent to $7.7 million.

Property tax revenues are estimated for a 13 per cent increase to $1.3 million, a figure Parness said looked like a "big jump" but may be quite "conservative." Sales and use tax monies are expected to raise 12 per cent, reaching the $1 million mark for the first time in Livermore's history. Business license taxes should jump 10 per cent to $230,000.

Included in the general government monies is the general fund of $4.57 million which goes for administrative, public safety, public works, community development and other purposes.

An expected "low" $200,000 in unencumbered surplus funds and some from park funds are the only possible areas to draw for expected employe salary adjustments in the next few months, said Parness.

In his supplementary budget message, Parness took a philosophical sideswipe at the "federal carrot" and "program entrapment" which takes place when cities like Livermore receive grants for certain projects and are then stuck with the need to spend money

Kaiser to sell out sand & gravel firm

An agreement to sell Kaiser Sand and Gravel to a division of General Dynamics Corporation was announced on Thursday by principles of those two firms.

Kaiser Sand and Gravel, headquartered at Pleasanton, is one of the last segments of Kaiser Industries Corporation to be sold off by that parent body, which is undergoing dissolution.

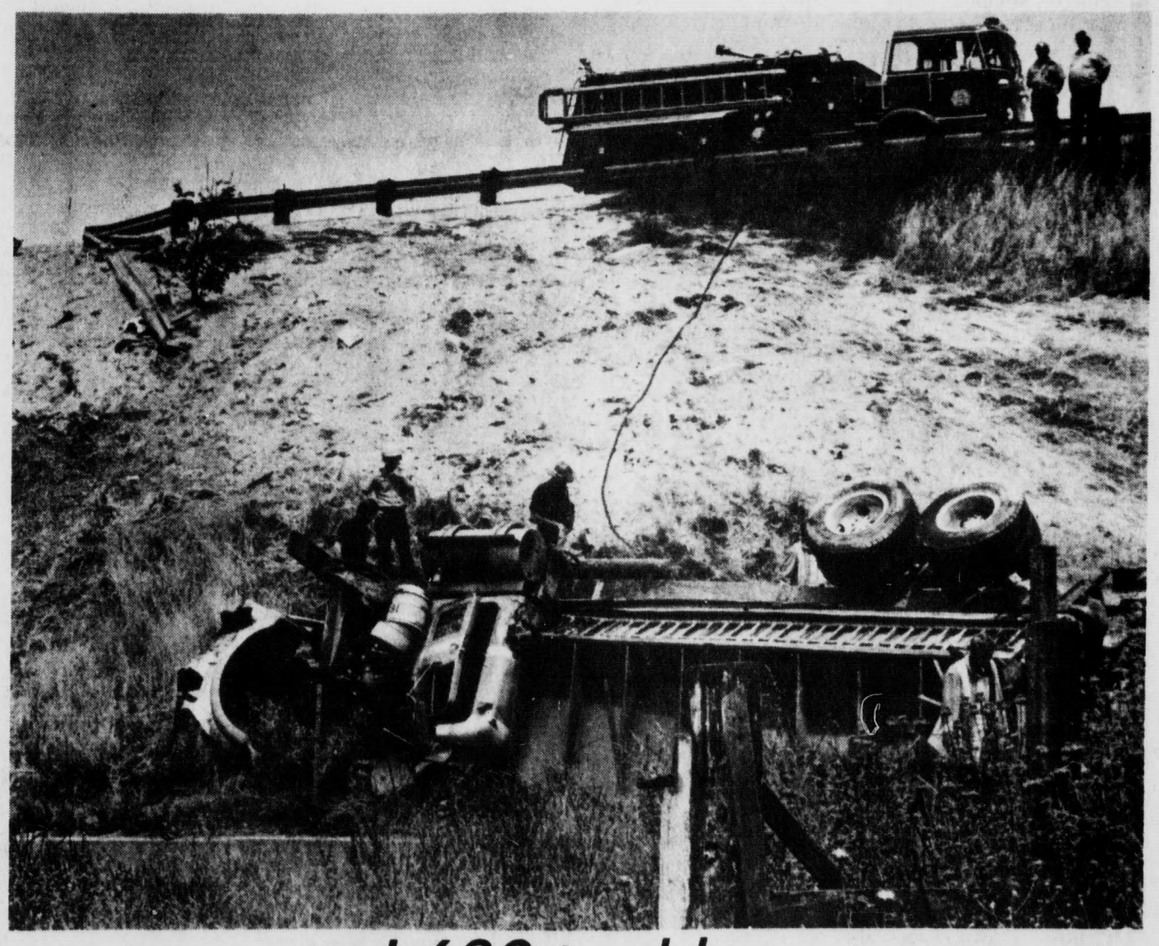
Material Service Corporation, a division of General Dynamics, will become owner and operator of Kaiser's quarry business, the bulk of which is centered east of Pleasanton. Purchase price was set at approximately $23 million.

Established in this Valley as one of the foundations of Henry Kaiser's industrial empire, the Radum plant has been a major source of local employment for some 40 years. Current employment is 170. Arnold Abrott of Pleasanton is vice president for Kaiser Sand and Gravel and general manager of the Radum plant.

Spokesman for Material Service Corporation say they anticipate no changes in management personnel as a result of the sale. The purchase is still subject to "a mutually satisfactory definitive agreement."

Kaiser owns some 750 acres here, and projects another 25 years of mining at the Radum site. A $13 million processing plant completed a few years ago was rated "the finest of its kind in the United States."

Material Service Corporation is in the concrete, aggregates and construction material business in Illinois. It does about four times the annual business volume of Kaiser Sand and Gravel.



I-680 tumbler

A blown tire was the apparent cause of an accident yesterday that sent Billy Laverne Cook's double-rig truck crashing through a barrier on I-680 and down onto Happy Valley Road near the Castlewood golf course about 2:30 p.m. Cook, 44, of Manteca, was thrown from the truck, and was rushed to Valley Memorial Hospital in serious condition with multiple fractures. Clouds of sand from his loaded rig stopped traffic as southbound motorists strained to get a look. No other vehicles were involved.

Suspect arrested following gunshots on Madeira

LIVERMORE — A Madeira Way resident who shot two holes through his bathroom window flooded his jail cell while waiting to be booked on the firearms charge, police reported.

Police responded to calls of gunshots and found two spent cartridges in the bathroom. Two holes were noticed in the window screen. A .25-caliber automiatic pistol was found nearby.

Ronald Dale Seagraves, 31, of 3712 Madeira Way was taken to city jail to be booked on suspicion of discharging a firearm within city limits.

While police were writing a report on the incident, a closed circuit television monitor of the cell showed water flowing into the hallway. Seagraves had stuffed toilet paper into the sink and toilet and turned the water on full, officers said.

The suspect reportedly kicked and damaged the jail cell door, police added.

Seagraves was booked on suspicion of discharging a firearm within city limits and destroying or injuring jails.

Vandals damage uncompleted school, homes

LIVERMORE — Vandals caused an estimated $2,000 damage over the Memorial Day weekend by throwing orange and black paint on an uncompleted school building on Frankfurt Way.

Four large windows were also shattered, police said.

In a possibly related incident, 44 sprinkler heads and 20 five by six foot windows located in the Sunset Homes development on Holmes and Concannon streets were wrecked by vandals. Roof tiles and plastic piping in the tract were also ruined.

Damage to the development was estimated at $2,480.

Sheriff's deputy injured in cycle collision

SUNOL — Sheriff's Deputy Paul Otey suffered a broken leg Wednesday when a youthful motorcyclist wanted for a traffic violation raced into the officer following a brief chase on Pleasanton - Sunol Road.

Otey had cornered the youth near Castlewood Country Club's lower golf course when the cycle apparently stalled. As Otey tried to flag down the cyclist, the youth collided with him.

An off-duty sheriff's deputy playing golf nearby assisted in the arrest. The youth was booked on suspicion of assault with a deadly weapon.

Narcotics warrant leads to two drug busts

LIVERMORE — Police Wednesday executed a narcotics search warrant on a North P Street home and turned up numerous suspected marijuana plants, then turned around and confiscated 18 more plants from the house next door.

When police knocked on the door at 867 North P St., officers reported hearing the toilet flush twice, so they forced their way in. Two partial marijuana leaves were allegedly found floating in the toilet, and numerous plants were discovered in the residence.

Arrested on suspicion of marijuana cultivation and destroying evidence was William Myron Curtis, 25, of 867 North P St.

Thirty-five minutes later, officers raided the house next door after spotting alleged marijuana plants in a window. Eighteen plants, a small quantity of suspected marijuana and narcotics paraphernalia were taken into evidence.

Arrested on suspicion of cultivating marijuana were Robert Henry Lucas, 26, and Blaine Detiep Laumbaugh, 19, both of 865 North P St.

13-year-olds arrested after admitting vandalism

PLEASANTON — Two 13-year-old youths who admitted pouring liquid adhesive on the walls and floor of a West Angela Street basement were arrested Wednesday.

Joshua James Lord told officers that vandals had kicked their way into his home early Wednesday and spilled the adhesive everywhere.

Officer Joe Rose conducted a neighborhood search and got descriptions of two possible suspects. Further legwork produced two suspects who admitted committing the damage.

Two 13-year-old boys were booked on suspicion of trespassing and vandalism.

Burglars apparently broke another stopwatch and attempted to break into a soft drink machine. Police said entry was made through the school roof. There are no suspects.

The loss was pegged at $600. There are no suspects.

Mori questions charge against labor official

Farm worker leader Cesar Chavez attacked a labor panel overseer as incompetent yesterday, but Assemblyman Floyd Mori thought that the charges might be just so much heat in the kitchen.

Mori, chairperson of the Agricultural Labor Relations Board, was careful not to prejudge the specifics of Chavez's allegations against the board's counsel, Harry Delizonna. But he noted that the committee will be holding a hearing tomorrow in the Coachella Valley so that farm workers and growers can air their complaints about the performance of the farm labor board.

The board supervises elections where farm workers decide whether they want to join a union. Chavez claimed that Delizonna's staff had "bungled" elections and that complaints from growers, too, are caused by "staff incompetence".

Delizonna was en route to the Coachella Valley yesterday and not available for comment.

"From my observation, Delizonna has attempted to be objective in meeting the letter of the law and as a result he has received the wrath of both sides," said Mori. If the charges come up at the hearing tomorrow, he will deal with them then.

UFW spokespaerson Marc Grossman told the Associated Press that Delizonna has a policy "that board agents cannot interview company foremen or supervisors without the permission of the grower attorney. This delays and inhibits unfair labor practice investigations."

Grossman said that Delizonna is "either unable or unwilling to enforce the law. The ALRB's crucial Coachella office is hopelessly incompetent and Delizonna's repeated failure to correct that incompetence means he is either incompetent himself or he is afraid to stand up to grower interests that seek to subvert the law."

Grossman claimed the act is "getting to be no different than other laws designed to protect farm workers that are not enforced, such as child labor laws, minimum wage and farm labor housing statutes."

Teen stabs other teen in fight

PLEASANTON — Police arrested a 16 year old Amador High School student yesterday after he reportedly stabbed a 17 year old youth in the upper abdomen with a small pocket knife.

"What started as a pushing and shoving match on a residential street near campus during the lunch break," said Lt. David Freeman, "carried on until they became involved in a violent fight."

The older youth was taken to Valley Memorial Hospital for treatment of the wound and the 16 year old was turned over to county juvenile probation authorities. He has been charged with assault with a deadly weapon.

Identities of the two were withheld, said Freeman, because of their juvenile status.

Marijuana ease-up

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Action on the "grow-your-own" marijuana bill, lowering criminal penalties for cultivating up to three plants, has been delayed for two weeks in the Assembly.

Assemblyman Willie Brown, D-San Francisco, asked for the delay Wednesday in the Assembly Ways and Means Committee.

Brown said Assemblyman Julian Dixon, D-Los Angeles, who could have provided the deciding vote in the Assembly Ways and Means Committee, was ill in Los Angeles. Brown asked each opponent to provide a "courtesy" vote to move the bill to the Assembly floor, but there were no takers.

He then got the committee to rescind its vote on the bill and schedule another vote in two weeks.

The vote was 9-10 with one abstention, Assemblywoman Teresa Hughes, D-Los Angeles, who said later she didn't favor the bill but would have voted for it to keep it alive.

The measure would make growing up to three marijuana plants a misdemeanor punishable by a maximum $100 fine with no arrest or booking. Currently it is a felony.

The measure comes on the heels of a year-old state law similarly reducing penalties for possession of up to one ounce of marijuana.

With Atty. Gen. Evelle Younger and many others in law enforcement opposing the bill, it has had tough going so far and faces a doubtful future in the state Senate if it clears the Assembly.

Funds search still on

Though disappointed by the city council's rejection of a proposal for city funding of its staff, the Human Services Commission Wednesday night took some consolation in the fact it may still get part time help through ACAP / ACTEB.

The council a few weeks ago voted out the $13,000 that had been budgeted to take over the cost of staffer Dianne McKenna's four days a week which has been funded by ACAP / ACETEB, the anti-poverty federal agency operating in Alameda County.

Director of Recreation and Human Resources Bob Caporusso will ask ACAP / ACTEB to keep funding McKenna two days a week in the next year. She would be needed to follow through on a human needs assessment questionnaire which will be taken in the community soon at 300 sample households, said Caporusso.

Some council members expressed disappointment at the budget hearings that the questionnaire was not further along, but the delays were unavoidable, according to Caporusso.

Human Services Commissioner Christine Pearson said Wednesday night that since the HSC doesn't have the information the council wants, it should be get busy and obtain it, then call a study session with the city council concerning the uman needs study findings.

Stop sign meet slated for Dublin

Jessie Cambra, director of public works for Alameda County, and Supervisor Valerie Raymond's administrative aide will meet with a Murray School District safety committee this morning to discuss placement of four-way stop signs at Village Parkway and Tamarack in Dublin.

David Foster is chairman of the committee, which will meet in the Frederiksen School library at 8:30 this morning.

Murray district residents, particularly those in the Frederiksen area, have urged placing of a stop sign, if not a stop light, before the start of classes in September.

With the conversion of Frederiksen to seventh and eighth grades, and redistricting of K-6 students to nearby Murray schools, student foot traffic across Village Parkway is expected to increase.

Foster said the committee hopes to convince the county that stop signs should be put up this summer, well in advance of the resumption of classes.

General plan stirring opposing Valley views

According to Jensen, a recent newspaper ad pegged Pleasanton housing at $75,000, Livermore at $65,000, and Manteca at $39,000.

"Come to Manteca," the ad proclaimed, where the "no-growth" influence has not raised housing costs, he said.

He was backed by former pig farmer Joe Migliore, who wants his lands south of Livermore off Tesla Road zoned for five-acre "rural residential" lots.

The Valley needs small ranchettes, he said, "We haven't got any more."

He says his land is boxed in by similar developed lots, roads and a creek.

"I'm not a land developer," he kept telling the board. "I'm a hog man."

But the two were balanced out by environmentalist Margaret Tracy and Lois Hill, both of Livermore.

Tracy presented the board with a 9,244 signature petition urging preservation of the ridgelands from Santa Clara through Alameda and Contra Costa Counties. She wants the board to allow development of a "Ridgelands Urban Park" that would hold private lands in liberalized Williamson Act contracts and public ownership.

Hill, also a 20-year Livermore resident, said "most people are talking out of their own interest."

Land speculators "keenly anticipate" the accelerated land costs that will turn a profit, she said.

But "free enterprise always entails a risk," she quickly added.

The "public trust weighs heavily on (the board of supervisors) to serve the public good."

She wants future housing restricted to the "orderly development of existing cities."

Free mini-bus service aids SR Valley senior citizens

DANVILLE — Home bound senior citizens in Danville and Alamo can get out and about now thanks to free mini-bus service available Mondays and Thursdays from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

The service is sponsored by the Alamo - Danville Committee on Aging, Incorporated, according to Edna Selley. She is chairperson of the transportation committee.

Danville Rotarians donated the nine-passenger bus.

Due to insurance and other restrictions, the bus is not permitted to go out of the Danville - Alamo areas.

Rides must be reserved 24 hours in advance. To reserve bus service for Thursday, calls must be made the prior Wednesday from 9 a.m. to noon.

A Monday ride is reserved by calling the prior Friday during the same hours. The phone number is 837-0226.

Drivers and dispatchers work on a volunteer basis. By July, the transportation committee hopes to hire a driver.

Federal grant money under Title III of the Older Americans Act and local donations defray maintainence and operational costs.

Seniors in San Ramon have been trying to get some form of transportation service operating in their area.

Seniors in all of the areas mentioned need bus service to take them to doctors, dentists, shopping, socializing and for groceries.

— by Sue Vogelsanger

Martha Schremp, left, and Betty Barham get set for another day of providing mini-bus service for senior citizens in Danville and Alamo. Schremp coordinates volunteer dispatchers and drivers. Barham is one of the volunteer drivers.

Dublin youth wins poster honor

DUBLIN— James Seilhymer, an eighth grader at Dublin School, is the recipient of a certificate for his entry in the 33rd annual School Traffic Safety Poster Contest.

The award was presented to James last week by George G. Wills, manager of the California State Automobile Association office in Dublin.

James' entry was one of 38,000 turned in to the contest nationwide. Title of his drawing, done in water colors, was "Expect the Unexpected."

The drawing depicted two autos below a cliff with a huge boulder teetering on the edge of the cliff.

James received a handsome plaque from the CSAA.

Four other students from Dublin School also entered the contest.

Dublin School teacher Pat Reiley and student James Seilhymer show award won in nationwide safety poster contest.

CC Supervisor Hasseltine backs area planning units

DANVILLE — The theory of establishing area planning commissions throughout San Ramon Valley may be put into practice if a two-year trial run proves the idea is feasible.

During a supervisorial liaison session yesterday morning at the Danville Hotel Restaurant and Saloon, Eric Hasseltine told an audience of 25 he felt the experiment was going to be successful. Hasseltine is Contra Costa County's fifth district supervisor.

Hasseltine pointed out area planning commissions would have more local control over planning matters. The Contra Costa County Planning Commission is in control now.

Hasseltine noted the county need not have a planning commission — that the proposal would broaden the supervisor's delegation of authority while leaving ultimate control in the hands of the board.

He added the authority of area planning commissions would have "teeth", too.

Local commission members would be appointed by the board of supervisors.

On a 3-2 vote May 31, the Contra Costa County board of supervisors asked County Counsel John Clausen to draft an outline of an ordinance setting up the area commissions on a two-year trial basis. By November 1978, citizens of those areas would be asked to vote whether service areas should be set up to fund local planning.

Not all supervisors agree the proposal will work, Hasseltine reported.

Supervisors James Kenny, first district, and Nancy Fahden, second district, opposed the motion made May 31 for the proposed area commissions. Third district supervisor, Robert Schroder, made the motion.

Kenny said the idea should be presented to the Contra Costa Mayors' Conference. He further declared if areas want to do their own planning they should incorporate.

Fahden said she was opposed to any body other than the planning commission having control over decision - making in planning. She contended it would be opening the door for other parts of the county and could become more involved.

Enrollment, inflation

Schools face huge cuts

By JONATHAN WOLMAN
AP Urban Affairs Writer

Summer school in Chicago and Washington is almost a thing of the past. Baseball has been eliminated in Louisville schools, and Detroit youngsters are no longer offered classes in music or art.

Huge cuts in public school services remain a big-city worry in parts of the country, typified by Philadelphia's proposal earlier this week to make broad cutbacks in classroom programs to save money. Inflation and declining enrollments are twin pressures driving the cost of education beyond some school board budgets.

But most city school districts, especially west of the Mississippi, report healthy finances and say that whatever financial pressures they experience can be handled without hurting students' education.

Speaking for most school officials, spokesman Robert Tesch in Milwaukee says, "The gloom and doom situation in Philadelphia is not present here."

A spot check of school finances nationally shows a mixed picture, with the current problem in Philadelphia much more severe than elsewhere, although Detroit and Chicago have been cutting services for years in order to cut expenses.

Blasting Pennsylvania lawmakers for trying to "starve the system," the Philadelphia school superintendant this week announced plans to close 32 schools, fire 10,000 employes and eliminate kindergarten and varsity sports.

"We had no alternative," explained Superintendent Michael Marcase. He said banks which have been loaning the school system money threatened to pull the plug unless the system balances its $511-million budget.

On Tuesday, New York City's Board of Estimate approved a $2.8-billion education budget, a $300-million increase over last year. Nevertheless, it means $38 million less for instruction and support services, a board spokesman said, because of increases in fixed costs.

June 17, a day of celebration for 524,000 Chicago youngsters, will be a day of financial mourning for the school system. The first day of summer vacation for the students, it had been scheduled to be the last day of school but was cut out of the school calendar by budget cutters working to pare a $57-million deficit.

Other Chicago cutbacks include one-month layoffs for principals and a 15 per cent reduction in spending on supplies. But the biggest blow is in the summer-school program, reduced from an average enrollment of 200,000 in recent years to "a shadow of its former self," according to a spokesman.

Such cutbacks inevitably trickle down to hurt the students. In Detroit, art and music have been eliminated in elementary and middle schools, and Henry Ford High has ended its advanced course in calculus for college-bound seniors.

As in Louisville, school baseball has been eliminated in Detroit. School officials also predict that the student population of 242,000 will drop another 10,000 next year as more families leave the city or transfer their children to private or parochial schools.

The Jefferson County, Ky., system, which includes Louisville, faces a projected $13-million deficit, forcing the cut in spring sports and the elimination of drivers' training.

In Boston, officials are considering cuts in night school programs, and the mayor — who has little authority in the matter — says 20 schools should be closed because of huge enrollment declines that he blames on resistance to school busing.

The District of Columbia has closed six schools and another 20 may be on the butcher block, according to deputy superintendent Edward Winner. Summer schools which served 10,000 students also were cut to the point where they operate only for seniors short of credits.

Other districts, such as Los Angeles and Buffalo, N.Y., say financial problems may force some program cutacks unless more money is forthcoming from their state legislatures, but the picture elsewhere is rosier, according to most school officials.

In Utah, most school districts have been conducting contract negotiations for next year and the idea of cutting back programs hasn't come up. Teachers are looking forward to at least a 6 per cent salary boost in Granite School District, the state's largest.

The question of teacher salaries hangs heavy over the heads of an otherwise healthy New Orleans' school system.

The last time voters agreed to increase the school district tax was in the 1940s, and teachers voted last week to strike if officials don't come up with a salary boost.

Dallas schools report no financial problems; in fact, voters recently endorsed an $80-million school improvement bond.

"We've had a very healthy fiscal situation," says Albany, N.Y., Superintendant David Bray. He credits a decision to close nine schools in recent years as an economy measure. "We plan some reduction, principally by attrition," he added.

Topeka officials voted last spring to shut down 11 schools over an 11-year period due to declining enrollment, but the district plans no cutbacks in student programs.

New Mexico has disperate problems of both declining and soaring enrollments. In much of the state, schools are losing state aid because their enrollments are declining.

In northwest New Mexico, however, it's a different story. The energy-rich area is booming, and it is difficult for local districts to finance school facilities through the usual bond-issue route. The state is helping out.

In Indianapolis, where officials are implementing a desegregation plan, finances are strong enough that "our biggest problem is finding funds to expand programs and develop new ones," says Karl Kalp, superintendant of schools.

The school crisis in Philadelphia is old hat in New York, where the brunt of the cutbacks began three years ago at the height of the city's fiscal crisis.

Ordinance will be drafted

County approves SR Valley planning unit

Lesher News Bureau

MARTINEZ — The formation of autonomous planning commissions for Orinda and the San Ramon Valleywas given preliminary approval of the Board of Supervisors Tuesday on a split vote.

As approved by the board, the new commissions would have jurisdiction over planning items in their areas without having to incorporate as cities, and take effect July 1.

They would both be composed of seven members appointed by the Board of Supervisors and remain intact at least until their continuation is put to a vote of area residents in November 1978.

If the electorate votes against forming a tax district to support the bodies further, they would dissolve in 1979.

Planning committees now exist in both areas, but act only in advisory capacities to the county Planning Commission.

The new commissions will be completely independent of the county Planning Commission, but can be overruled by the Board of Supervisors.

The board's approval of the new bodies came after a lengthy debate of sharply differing philosophies.

Supervisors Nancy Fahden, Martinez, and James Kenny, Richmond, both opposed the new commissions, while supervisors Robert Schroder, Walnut Creek, and Eric Hasseltine, Danville heartily supported them.

Board chairman Warren Boggess of Concord supported the motion onlt after it included the provision that continuation of the commissions be put to a vote in 1978.Kenny said the matter should be taken to the county Mayors Conference before it was voted on, claiming that the commissions would take up additional man hours from the county Planning Department and cost up to an additional $12,000 per year.

Fahden called the motion "provincial" and said that it would discourage incorporation of the areas. She also said she was philosophically opposed to transferring the power of the county's Planning Commission to two other advisory bodies.

"You're asking to give power out, to give the San Ramon Valley the same power the Planning Commission has," she told Hasseltine, who developed the recommendation along with Schroder.

"Are you afraid to give power back to the people in the local communities?" countered Hasseltine.

Hasseltine noted that both the San Ramon Valley and Orinda have not received the financial benefits fo the county that other unincorporated areas have, such as public transportation services in East County, and that having their own Planning Commissions would help to correct the inequities.

"It would truly allow local participation in local matters," said Schroder.

But Kenny warned that the action might spark similar requests from West County areas like Kensington and North Richmond.

County Counsel John Clausen will draft a "skeleton ordinance" authorizing the formation of the commissions that will come before the board for consideration in the near future.

The board indicated Tuesday that the commission memmbers would serve without salaries or utility expenses for the first two years, but could rely on the resources of the county Planning Department.

Joyce Hawkins, co-chairman of the Orinda Association Planning Commission, lauded the supervisor's initial action and said she would be "very disappointed if the supervisors don't approve the ordinance" which actually sets up the commissions.

First step towards new CC jail

Lesher News Bureau

MARTINEZ — A construction firm here has been awarded the contract for the first building phase of the new County Jail.

The R. E. Jones Co. of Martinez was awarded the contract for $315,879 to realign Pine Street in preparation for construction of the 7.5 acre jail facility.

Work is expected to bgin in the middle of June and be completed by Septmeber, said Vernon Cline, public works director. The project will realign Pine Street to connect to Court Street in an S-curve between Thompson and Mellus and also relocate Pine Street utilities.

Cline said there would be no major disruptions of downtown trffic furing during the relocation.

R.E. Jones Co.'s bid was 10 per cent below the county's estimate of $345,000.

It will be the first actual step in construction of the new jail after more than 10 years of planning.

Total cost of the jail, which will be located within the parameters of Court, Willow, Ward and Green streets, is estimated at $20 million. It's expected to be completed by 1979.

Housing problems

By BOB NOREK
Homes Editor

SAN FRANCISCO — America's "top" builder Wednesday said the "true problem" facing the housing industry is the lack of multi-family construction.

Robert Arquilla, president of the National Association of Home Builders, told the press at the 19th annual Pacific Coast Builders Conference (PCBC) that if multiple family housing unit contruction did not pick up there would be an unbelievable housing crisis in America in 10 years.

Arquilla said the "crisis or shortage would be nearly impossible to overcome.

"Currently our economy has not recovered enough to support profitable multi-family unit construction or operation," Arquilla told his Fairmount Hotel audience.

The NAHB president said that a program must be developed by both the public and private sectors to encourage multi-family unit construction and make it profitable.

He suggested the further granting of federal funds in multiple family residential construction field.

Arquilla predicted a "Fantastic year" in 1977 for the single-family home construction industry. "California is greatly responsible for this trend."

Arquilla told the media he hoped this trend would continue through 1978, but added he is "deeply disturbed about the high cost ot new housing, especially in California.

The "affordable home" is what the public wants and can afford, according to Arquilla. "The no-frill home is not being bought by the American public," he said.

Commenting on the problems facing California home builders, Arquilla said the government restrictions and environmental issues will stop growth and cause movement. Population movement out of the state.

Aggression cookies, fruit leather - all in a Saturday's work

Don't you wish you knew how to make aggression cookies?

No, they're not laced with arsenic. But they do help you to take out your aggressions by pounding dough, according to petite Ann Peters, who doesn't look as if she ever gets mad.

Ann and her Valley Child Care colleague Courine Warren will be teaching the aggression cookie recipe to anyone who works with small children — along with secrets for making finger Jello and fruit leather — on two Saturday mornings, June 4 and June 11, at Chabot College's Valley campus.

With a whole string of guest speakers to liven things up, the pair of early childhood experts will be presenting eight hours of tips, projects, recipes, stories, games and much more for anyone who takes care of toddlers, and especially for owners of day care centers.

Both Ann and Courine have taught at Chabot before, but their new course is a "first" in the area — NOT geared for nursery school teachers so much as for people who care for small groups of kids.

The official Chabot College title is, "Child Care from a Child Development Perspective." You don't have to attend Chabot to take the course (a half - unit of credit is available for those who want it) and it's totally free. Signups are in Roon 203 of the Valley campus (north of Livermore Airport off Collier Canyon Road) from 8 - 8:30 a.m. just prior to the class opening at 8:30.

Hours are 8:30 - 12:30 on both Saturdays.

We're not going to give away the aggression cookie recipe, except to note the directions say to "smush," "squeeze" and "smash."

However, here is a simple recipe for delicious "fruit leather" like the artificially sweetened and tinted rolls you can buy in the supermarket — only this recipe is minus the junk:

Blend 2 cups fruit in a blender until it is liquified. Apricots and plums are popular but any fruit or combination will work.

Place waxed paper over a cookie sheet. Spread the fruit evenly on the waxed paper.

Cover with cheesecloth and set in the sun to dry. Then, roll it up; store in the refrigerator for months or the freezer for years, according to Courine.

Carol Whelan, who directs the Pleasanton Recreation Department's preschool "Gingerbread House," will show how to do "reverse tie - dye" artwork by dropping liquid bleach onto colored paper with an eyedropper. She will also offer many other projects and activities, which she'll teach to participants by having them experience the activities themselves instead of just hearing about them.

"It's not just sitting in your chair," Peters warns of the planned sessions.

Nutritionist Linda Ward will be showing the class how to make good snacks. On the more serious side, Charlene Burns of the Pleasanton Health Care Center will explain various disease symptoms so day care people will know which children are likely to be sick enough to stay home and which will be OK to keep at the center all day.

Along the same lines, Jacque Foster will describe basic first - aid techniques including cardio - pulmonary resuscitation for children who have stopped breathing — a comforting skill to have even if you never use it.

Myra Latkin, director of St. Bart's Nursery School in Livermore, will talk about discipline, emphasizing respect for the child and clear, simple rules.

More about the fun - filled Saturday mornings — call Valley Child Care, 455 - 5111, or Chabot College, 455 - 5300.

A snacktime fairy tale

(Editor's note: This tale is one of many printed items to be shared with child care workshop participants.)

Once upon a time there was a little boy who was tired of all his toys and tired of all his books and tired of all his play.

"What shall I do?" he asked his dear mother, and his dear mother, who always knew beautiful things for little boys to do, said, "You shall go on a journey and find a little red house with no doors and a star inside."

Then the little boy's eyes grew big with wonder. "Which way shall I go," he asked, "to find a little red house with no doors and a star inside?"

"Down the lane and past the farmer's house and over the hill," said his dear mother. "Come back as soon as you can and tell me all about your journey."

So the little boy started out. He had not walked very far down the lane when he came to a merry little girl dancing along in the sunshine.

"Do you know where I shall find a little red house with no doors, and a star inside?" the little boy asked her.

The little girl laughed. "Ask my father, the farmer," she said.

So the little boy went on until he came to the great brown barn where the farmer himself stood in the doorway looking out over the pastures and grainfields.

"Do you know where I shall find a little red house with no doors, and a star inside?" asked the little boy of the farmer.

The farmer laughed, too. "I've lived a great many years and I never saw one," he chuckled, "but ask the Granny who lives at the foot of the hill. She knows how to make arrowroot taffy and popcorn balls and red mittens. Perhaps she can direct you to it."

So the little boy went on farther still until he came to the Granny sitting in her pretty garden of herbs and marigolds.

"Please, dear Granny," asked the little boy, "where shall I find a little red house with no doors and a star inside?"

The Granny was knitting a red mitten, but when she heard the little boy's question she laughed cheerily.

"I should like to find that little house myself," she chuckled. "It would be warm when the frosty nights come and the starlight would be prettier than a candle. But ask the wind who blows about so much and listens at all the chimneys. Perhaps the wind can direct you to the little house."

So the little boy took off his hat politely to the Granny and went on up the hill.

The wind was coming down the hill as the little boy climbed up. As they met, the wind turned about and went singing along beside him. It whistled in his ear and pushed him and dropped a pretty leaf into his hands to show what a good comrade he was.

"Oh, Wind," asked the little boy after they had gone along together quite a way, "can you help me to find a little red house with no doors and a star inside?"

The Wind cannot speak in our words, but it went singing on ahead of the little boy until it came to an orchard. There it climbed up in an apple tree and shook the branches. When the little boy caught up, there at his feet lay a great, rosy apple.

The little boy picked up the apple. It was as-much as his two hands could hold. It was as red as the sun had been able to paint it, and the thick brown stem stood up as straight as a chimney. It was a little red house in which the apple blossom fairy had gone to sleep. It had no windows.

"I wonder," said the little boy. He took his jackknife from his pocket and cut the apple straight through the center. Oh, how wonderful! There, inside the apple, lay a star holding brown seeds.

So the little boy called "Thank you" to the wind; and the Wind whistled back, "You're welcome."

Then the little boy ran home to his mother and gave her the apple.

"It is too wonderful to eat without looking at the star, isn't it?"

"Yes, indeed," answered his dear mother.

church news

Deacon Dennis Gleason welcomes new member Cheryl Gaunt who will be one of those received during Pentecost celebration at First Presbyterian Church of Livermore on Sunday.

Pentecost celebration at First Presbyterian

LIVERMORE — The Pentecost Celebration at the First Presbyterian Church of Livermore this Sunday will be laced with color.

Members and guests are asked to dress in the traditional Pentecost colors of red and white. As worshippers arrive at the 10:30 a.m. service, white ribbons will be given those who have been members 25 years or more. All others will receive red ribbons.

During the service in the sanctuary, new members will be received, including a youth confirmation class. The Sanctuary choir will sing "Come Let Us All This Day". Midway in the service, the congregation will adjourn to the Courtyard where Communion will be served in the traditional manner.

Scores of balloons will be released after messages of love and hope have been attached to them. Last year, two balloons were found in the northern High Sierras.

Following the formal service, members and guests are invited to picnic in the courtyard. Usually picnickers bring enough lunch for their own family and some to share.

Lunches might include cheese, fruit, bread and beverages, all symbols of Pentecost. Casual dress is suggested for those staying for the picnic. There will be childcare for infants and classes for pre-schoolers Children in grades 1-6 will participate in the entire service.

Women's Association will meet Tuesday for luncheon at noon in the Fellowship Hall. After the business meeting, Mr. Frank Hamilton from the office of the Synod of the Pacific will speak about missions within the United States.

Cowan, now of Turlock, was one of the charter members and will spend a few minutes reminiscing about the "good old days."

A picnic at Junction Avenue Park, complete with a clown, balloons, and much food, will highlight the birthday party. Everyone is invited. Bring your own utensils, a picnic lunch large enough for you and your family plus one or two. The extra will give plenty to eat for the youngsters who ride on the six busses operated by Trinity.

Pastor of the church, the Rev. Jim Morton is hoping to see 650 in Sunday school at 9:45 a.m. There will be games for all ages under the direction of the church staff. It will be just like a family picnic on a very large scale.

LIVERMORE — Alcohol Addiction and how it afflicts everyone will be the theme of the movie to be shown at the workshop to be held on Wednesday, June 1, at 8 p.m., in the St. Michael Education Center, in the upstairs Lecture Room. This meeting will be the third in a series being presented by Father Ernest Brainard of the Oakland - Diocese Special Education Project on Alcoholism, and everyone is invited.

Foothill High

First senior class graduates June 17

Foothill High School's first senior class, the Class of '77, will graduate at ceremonies scheduled Friday, June 17 on the campus at 5 p.m.

For the 300-plus first graduates, it'll be the culmination of the school's first four year cycle, a span that has been anything but dull.

As the pioneer class at the Foothill Road facility in Pleasanton, the students, along with staff and the community, overcame many facility hardships to achieve a record of both academic and extracurricular success.

Achivements of individual class members have been almost too numerous to count.

Of course, there was always the Foothill band which inaugurated a successful band festival while gathering trophies from competitions throughout California and Oregon.

There was the design award from NASA received by Terry Schoop, academic honors and, most recently, Jori Alexander's winning the Maid of Pleasanton crown.

Though lacking a fully-equipped library, necessary athletic facilities, and an auditorium to present theatrical productions, the Falcons persevered, thanks to excellent support from booster groups, the staff and the business community.

Foothill's drive to obtain lights and bleachers for their athletic field is an example of mutual effort.

With continuing support, Foothill will be using its lighted field for the first time this fall.

During the past year the gymnasium was opened and Falcon teams used the facility, with its unique rubberized surface, for the first time.

Students also successfully obtained a designated smoking area, after a trial period of a month earlier this year.

But many things still remain undone, and it will be the legacy of the Class of '77 to see that leadership and the Foothill Spirit is passed on to the Class of '78.

For the Class of '77, it'll be off to college or out into the world to seek full-time employment. For some, the the next two weeks will be their last time on campus.

At least until the first reunion or the initial community-wide event at Foothill High School.

So long and good luck, Class of '77!

Housing confab at Chabot

Environmentalists and builders— traditional opponents on housing development issues— will jointly sponsor a day-long conference to be held Saturday at Chabot College auditorium in Hayward.

San Diego Mayor Pete Wilson will be featured speaker and will discuss "The Problems and Prospects of Infilling."

Following the 8 a.m. registration, a film depicting solutions to typical housing problems in a New Jersey community will be shown.

There will also be a panel discussion with Bill Press, representative from the Governor's office of planning and research.

Wilson is considered a potential candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor next year.

Further information and tickets for the conference may be reserved by calling the public information office at Chabot College in Hayward.

Boozing endangers new births

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government warns women that if they take more than two drinks a day during pregnancy they risk giving birth to deformed or retarded children.

Dr. Ernest P. Noble, director of the National Institute on Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism told a news conference that recent scientific evidence led him to issue a public caution on the dangers of what he called fetal alcohol syndrome found in the infants of mothers who drank heavily during pregnancy.

"Both the risk and the extent of abnormalities appear to be dose related, increasing with higher alcohol intake during the pregnancy period," Noble said in a statement being distributed to the nation's physicians and health care facilities.

Women who drink as much as six cans of beer, glasses of wine or mixed drinks a day during pregnancy may have babies with all the symptoms of the syndrome, Noble said, while those who take more than two drinks but less than six may produce children with one or more symptoms.

The symptoms include children with IQ levels between 60 and 70 — considerably below average — hyperactivity, heart murmurs or other cardiac defects, small heads, low-set ears, small eyes, flat noses with upturned nostrils, carp-shaped mouths, poorly developed limbs, joined or otherwise malformed fingers and genitile abnormalities.

"The best scientific evidence available indicates that with two drinks a day or less there is no indication of adverse affects," Noble said. But several studies now are under way and the institute is devoting 10 per cent its $7.5 million research budget to finance more research.

Noble said the institute is considering a proposal to require a caution for pregnant women and those likely to become pregnant on alcohol bottles and cans, but he stressed that was only at a discussion stage and no such recommendation is being made at this time.

He added that estimate is probably low.

Four CCC residents win honors

Lesher News Bureau

NAPA — Four Contra Costa residents were awarded special California Department of Justice Awards from State Attorney General Evelle Younger recently.

Awarded certificates of valor were Reserve Deputy Sheriff John Humphrey of Concord, Reserve Deputy Ronald Pike of Concord, and Gregory Ingram, a student from Alamo.

Awarded a certificate of commendation was Fran Hagerstrand of Alamo.

The awards were presented at a regular zone meeting of Bay Area police chiefs and sheriffs at the Silverado County Club.

The certificate of valor is given for heroic service. The certificate of commendation is given for "meritorious service or acts."

Humphrey and Pike, members of the Sheriff's scuba diving team, dove into a siphon tube in the Contra Costa Canal while searching for a small boy who had been missing for several days.

During the search, Humphrey depleted his air supply, lost consciousness, and suffered a heart attack. Pike went into shock. Both were rescued, and sent to the hospital for observation.

While the rest of his family was being held at gunpoint by three armed robbers in their Alamo home, Ingram managed to call police from an upstairs room.

Hagerstand has been a member of the county Crime Prevention Committee since 1974. Since that time she has worked to establish programs and to generate community involvement towards reducing the crime rate in her area.

Her door-to-door Operation I.D. program has been credited with preventing burglaries in her area.

How to run a franchise

On Sports

With the rain - drenched crowd of over 17,000 people roaring until the last second, the North American Soccer League match between the host San Jose Earthquakes and the Washington Diplomats came to an end, the vistors winning out in post-overtime penalty kicks, 1-0.

What was so remarkable about this match (which was played two weeks ago) was not so much the action itself but the intensity, enthusiasm and size of the crowd, particularly considering the poor weather conditions.

Spartan Stadium was rocking with the shouts of the partisan fans and the cheerleading of "Krazy George", Santa Clara County's most vocal sports.

"Krazy George"

This kind of fan spirit is sadly missing at the San Francisco Giant and Oakland A's games, which is not suprising since the crowds no longer flock to Candlestick Park and the Oakland Coliseum.

Why don't the fans flock to the baseball parks anymore?

Essentially because the Giants and A's (besides the fact they are not winning consistently) are not making an effort to draw large crowds to the park.

Both teams could use a person like "Krazy George" to liven up the activities, particularly on evenings when things aren't going so well for the home team.

"Krazy George" has been known to turn up at almost any sporting event in the San Jose area, particularly at Earthquake matches and San Jose State athletic games.

He has even appeared at high school games in Santa Clara County, once coming to a James Lick - Mt. Pleasant football game on the east side totally unexpected and adding a bit of flair to the contest.

The Earthquakes are constantly coming up with gimmicks for "Krazy George" to use.

At the Diplomat - Earthquake contest KG arrived in a black limousine, dressed in a tuxedo with an extremely foxey lady at his side. It was meant as a gesture towards the vistors, who represent the nation's capital and its "formal" way of life.

A helicopter, apparently from Washington, circled the field and was "denied permission to land".

All this was greatly appreciated by the 'Quake fans, who have come to expect this kind of entertainment from the South Bay soccer club the past few seasons.

The ability of the Earthquakes to draw large crowds, despite the fact they play in a stadium that only seats around 21,000, is this showmanship attitude.

Professional soccer is still relativley new in the United States, so it had to buck the more established baseball franchises when the NASL was started.

Well, the NASL has done it successfully, particuarly in the Bay Area, where the Earthquakes outdraw both the A's and the Giants easily.

Charles Finley has done some publicity stunts to attract the public but most of them have lacked the imagination of the 'Quakes' stunts. The Giants did virtually nothing under their previous ownership but Bob Lurie has started to appeal to the public a bit more by playing rock music and having high-wire acts perform at Candlestick Park. However, it's come a bit too late as the Earthquakes have made a permanent positive impression on Bay Area sports fans.

Compare with this the fact that soccer as a sport is catching on rapidly in the country and you have a situation where it could become the dominent spectator and particpate sport within a few years.

For one thing, almost anybody can play the game. You don't have to be especially big or fast (although quickness definately helps) to be a success in the sport.

This is in contrast to baseball, where, although size is not as important as it is in football or basketball, you'll still find the majority of baseball players being above - average in height and weight.

That prehaps is the main reason why soccer is catching on so fast in this country.

Where you have a sport that almost anyone can learn to play well the spectator can more easily identify with the athlete. The Earthquakes brass know this and that's why they're taking advantage of it by using all the gimmicks they can think of.

After all, who would want to miss seeing a one-man side show perform his "Krazy" sideline acts, whether it's raining, snowing or shining brightly.

EBAL stars meet state's best

LOS ANGELES — All spring readers of this city's metropolitian newspapers have seen the names logged in fine print at the back of the sports section, where they file the top high school track and field times in California.

Gangnuss, Dublin ... Williams, Livermore ... Dolsby, Danville Monte Vista ... a series of names in a compilation of current trivia. They will take human form today as the trials of the California Interscholastic Federation track championships get underway at UCLA's Drake Stadium.

No one reading those masses of agate in the smog city dailies would be likely to connect the athletes, but they're all part of the biggest contingent of East Bay Athletic League runners, throwers, leapers and jumpers to reach the state meet, the ultimate in California prep track and field, in recent memory.

In all, 17 athletes from six of the EBAL's eight schools will be making the trip south.

Granada, with its strong girls team, will lead the way in numbers while Livermore and Dublin have the best chance of picking up team points via their strong individuals.

Matador pole vaulter Bryan McSharry will be the only Granada boy to compete, as he sailed 13-6 to take fourth in the North Coast Section meet of champions last weekend at Edwards Stadium in Berkeley.

That height, however, was more than a foot less than the winning height in the MOC and just six inches over the starting point at the CIF meet.

Granada's girls will also face stiff competition, some of it coming from, where else? rival Livermore.

In the field events, Kathy Honour, who qualified with a fourth-place leap of 17-7 in the long jump, could be struggling with her broken foot, a handicap that restricted her to crutches in between attempts at Berkeley.

Freshman high jumper Julie Stevens cleared 5-4 for third in the MOC and shows strong promise for the future but could find the going rather tough at UCLA.

Mat distance runners Arlene Daley and Kathy Lyons could both run into trouble from the same familiar source as well as whatever the rest of the state has to toss at them.

Daley ran 11:19.4 in the two mile and Lyons a 5:18.5 in the mile. Yet, both were surpassed by Livermore's Cheri Williams, who won the two mile at the MOC in 10:59.2, and remains a threat for the title there, and qualified for the mile at 5:07.3.

Cowboy high jumper Bob Churchill has gone 6-10 this season and tied for first in Berkeley with a 6-8 to establish himself as a strong contender. LiYermore's other competitor will be two-miler Michelle Aubuchon, who ran 11:27 in the MOC.

There can be nothing new to say about Dublin and Chuck Gangnuss. That surname was almost impossible for local newspapers to spell correctly two years ago, yet it flows out of the typewriter as easily as a reporter's own name these days.

Gangnuss leads the Gael 440 relay team, which also includes Jim Boulware, Jon Batchelor and Mark O'Hara. The latter trio more than holds its own for the squad,but Gangnuss' individual feats make him the "name."

The relay squad qualified at Cal with a 42.6 time while Gangnuss bounded to a 14.3 in the 120 high hurdles and a 37.6 in the 330 low hurdles. Neither of those times approached Gangnuss' best in the event as both times he was beaten by DeAnza's Will Patterson, a future University of Idaho team mate.

Lost in the shadows of that quartet, which with one substitution (Ricky Chan for O'Hara), went to state last year, is two-miler Julie Hayes.

Only a freshman, Hayes toured the eight-lapper in 11:32 to give the EBAL an unprecedented sweep of the four qualifying spots.

Amador Valley hurdler Jim Beigel surprised many with his 37.9 in the low hurdles after almost dropping the event at the league meet level. His team mate, freshman Angela Caros, clocked a 14.7 to qualify in the 110 low hurdles.

At the Contra Costa County end of the valley, San Ramon sprinter Fritz Venker hit the tape in the 100 in 9.9 and qualified in the 220 at 22.4. Monte Vista's Carol Dolsby won the MOC discus in a record 129-7 and qualfied for the state shot put with a toss of 42-1½.

Today's trials weed out the finalists for tomorrow's championship events.

This is the place Chuck Gangnuss (center) hopes to be in at the state meet: first

Valley frosh athletes in tough company

Making the California State High School Track meet is the goal of almost every boy or girl who puts on a pair of spikes when they go out for the school team.

When an athlete makes the Big Meet as a senior that alone is an achievement. But when the athlete is just a freshman it borders on the fantastic.

Well, the "fantastic" is just what three young ladies from East Bay Athletic League girls have accomplished.

High jumper Julie Stevens of Granada, Amador Valley's 120-yard low hurdler Angela Carlos and two-miler Julie Hayes of Dublin are all freshman and they are competing in the state meet starting today at UCLA.

A first-place medal is unrealistic for any of the three but the biggest thing they can gain from the meet is valuable experience, something they could use for the next three seasons.

"I was kind of suprised I qualified for the state meet," admitted Hayes. "I felt the other EBAL runners, like Williams (Cheri of Livermore, Arlene Daley of Granada and Michelle Aubuchon of Livermore, were going to qualify."

The Gael runner said she has worked on her endurance this week in order to prepare for the state meet.

"I feel I need more endurance," she stated. "I kind of lose it towards the end of the race and that's what I'm trying to correct.

"I'm aiming for a sub-11:30 clocking (she ran a 11:32.0 in the Meet of Champions) at the state meet."

Hayes hasn't really thought about the pressure of a high-caliber meet like the state championships but she admits she excited by it.

"I'm just going out there to do my best," she said frankly. "I don't know that much about the athletes from down south."

Hayes competed in the mile earlier in the year, placing fifth in the EBAL championships with a 6:19.0 clocking. So she does have some speed.

"I'm trying to develop more of a kick," she went on. "That and the endurance."

Carlos, who ran a 14.7 for fourth place and the final spot in the state qualifying at the MOC meet last weekend, has already met some tough competition and could benefit from it.

Gabriel of Harry Ells of Richmond shares the state's fastest low hurdles time with a 14.0 clocking. She won the MOC meet in that time.

"I'm hoping for about a 14.5 at state," she said. "I don't know who's in my heat so I don't really know what the competition will be like."

Carlos, who ran the sprints and did a little hurdling in junior high school, has high hopes for the rest of her high school career.

"I think I can run about a 14.0 in the 120-yard lows," she remarked. "This week I've been primarly working on my starts. That's important in a short race like the low hurdles."

Angela has a strong finish, coming from about sixth place to the fourth and vital placing at the NCS finals.

How could she'll do at the state meet may well depend on her start.

She has the speed, having run the mile relay and 100 at times during the season.

"I like the mile relay," she said. "Because your running with your team. Before the race I'm a little nervous but afterwards I generally feel pretty good."

Stevens has prehaps the best chance of the freshman trio to place or reach the finals of the Big Meet.

The Granada star took third in the Meet of Champions, leaping 5-4. Winner Candy Ross of Berkeley went 5-8. She finished second in the state last season so Stevens could be up the finalists tomorrow afternoon.

"I think she'll do all right," admitted Granada girls' mentor Bill Wooten. "We had her change her approach before the last meet and she still cleared 5-4.

"With an extra week to practice with it she should go even higher. Her takeoff was too short but now it's all right."

Wooten thinks the high jump could be a close event.

"I believe the places could be determined by fewer misses rather than height," he went on. "I think 5-10 or 5-11 should win first place."

Stevens, who is 5-7, could clear 5-10 or more in the next two years as she has plenty of competition from her teammates on the Matador EBAL girls' championship squad.

But the main thing these girls accomplished this year was to make the state meet.

Whether they win, place or even make the finals is not that important. That they are even at UCLA is a major achievement.

A's top Seattle

SEATTLE — Mike Norris scattered four singles as the Oakland A's edged the Seattle Mariners 1-0 Thursday night on Jim Tyrone's run-scoring double.

The A's got Norris the only run he needed in the fourth inning when Tyrone doubled home Tony Armas, who had singled.

Seattle starter Dick Pole, 2-2, went all the way for the Mariners, giving up only five hits.

Yankees 10, Twins 3 — Lou Piroellia had three RBI's and two home runs as the Yankees routed the Twins 10-3 on the losers' field.

Ed Figueroa was the winning pitcher.

White Sox 7, Orioles 4 — Jim Essian's three-run double capped a four-run third inning to give host Chicago the victory over Baltimore.

Francisco Barrios, 5-3, was the winning pitcher. However, he needed relief help. Still, he had a three-hitter until the seventh inning when Baltimore clubbed him for four hits and three runs.

Frazier, Jones NCAA stars

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. — Ex-Olympians Herman Frazier and Johnny Jones led their 400-meter relay teams to stadium records Thursday in qualifying for the semifinals at the 56th annual NCAA Track and Field Championships.

Jones came from behind on the final leg and his Texas team finished with a time of 39.81 seconds, bettering the mark of 40.5 set last year by the University of Chicago Track Club at the University of Illinois' Memorial Stadium. Frazier ran the anchor leg for the Arizona State squad, which finished in 39.82.

Four other teams, including the Auburn foursome anchored by another former Olympian, Harvey Glance, also beat the stadium standard. Sixteen teams qualified for Friday's semifinals.

Both Glance and Jones received the baton in second place but raced to clear victories in two of the four qualifying heats. Arizona State and Southern California captured the other two heats.

Glance and Jones were teammates on the 400-meter relay that won the gold medal for the United States at the 1976 Summer Olympics. Frazier was on the Olympic champion 1600-meter squad. Dwayne Evans of Arizona, who won a bronze medal in the 200-meter dash at the Olympics, ran the anchor leg Thursday for the 400-meter team that came in fourth and qualified for the semifinals.

Bell Engineering nips Native Sons

Two runs in the bottom of the sixth inning powered Bell Engineering to a 13-12 victory over Native Sons in Livermore Area Recreation and Park District softball play.

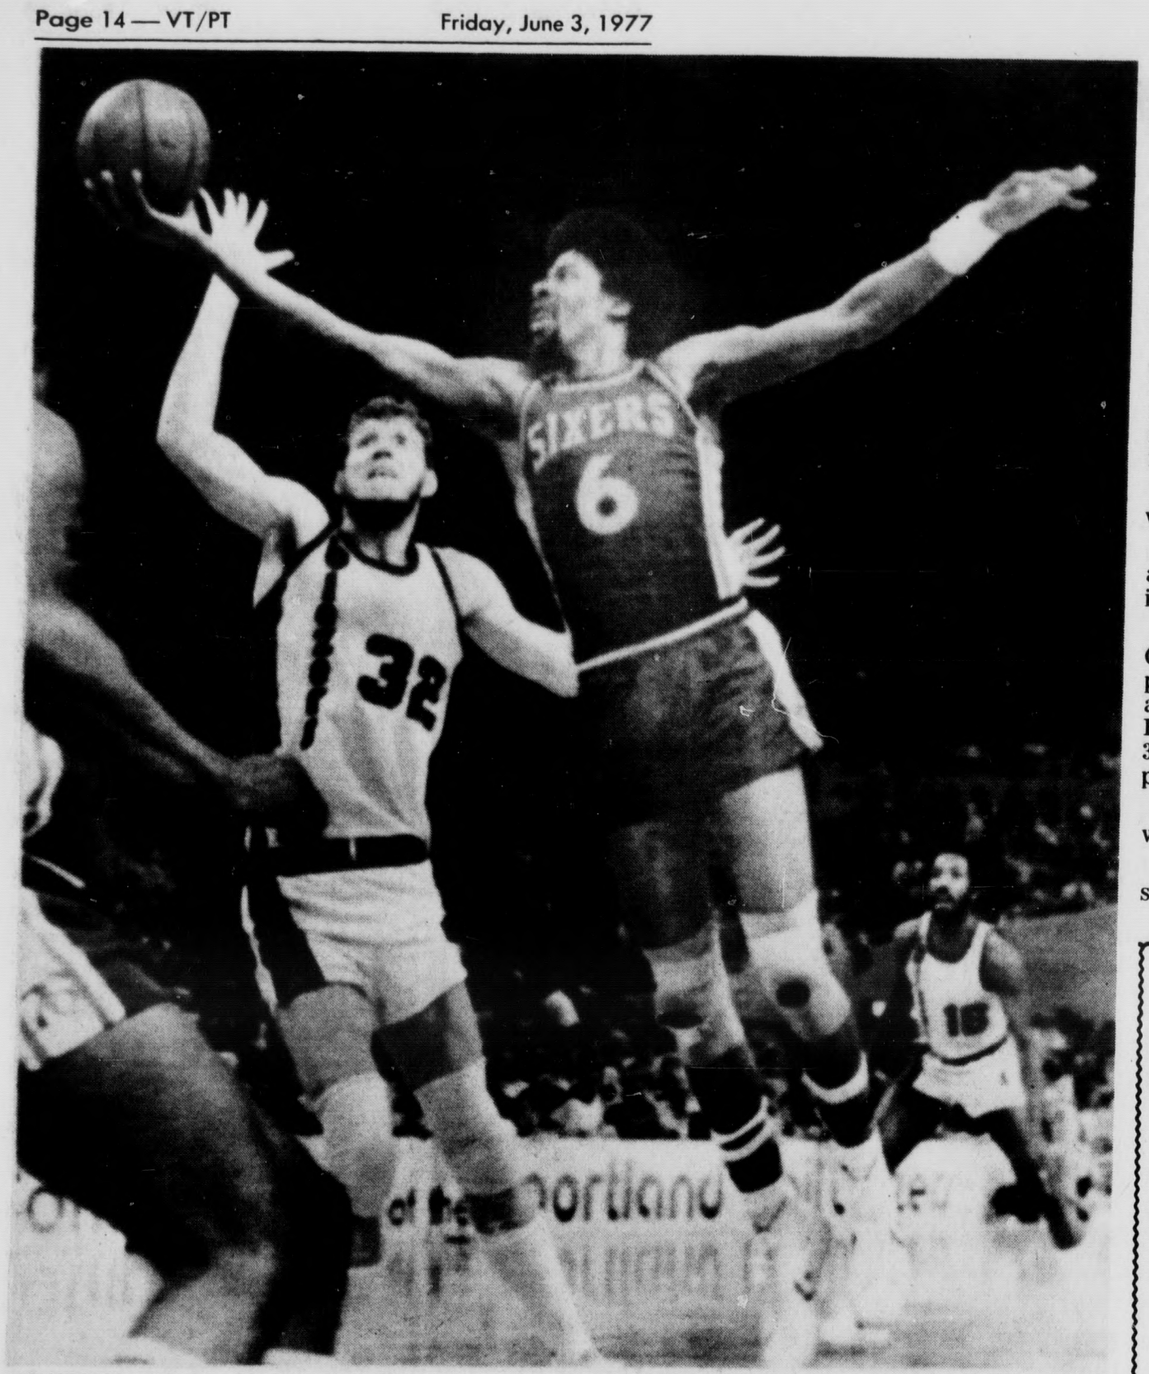
The game was nip and tuck all the way. After two innings, the score stood 5-4 Sons and each team scored once in the next frame. In the fourth, the Sons scored four time to just three for Bell and took a 10-8 lead, but that soon became 11-10 as Bell picked up three in the fifth. The Sons final tally came in the seventh, after Bell had scored what proved to be the winning runs in the fateful sixth inning.

Silva hurls no-hitter

Charlie Silva fashioned a no-hitter as the Cubs whipped the Dodgers 6-0 in Pleasanton Babe Ruth Senior league action.

Silva's only problem on the mound was a wild streak, as he walked nine Dodger hitters, but his over-all performance more than outshone that drawback. Silva fanned 14 opposing batters over the seven inning distance.

In addition to his mound heroics, Silva also was 3-for-3 at the plate and had one RBI. Tracy Wallis also had three hits for the Cubs and Mike Rennels hit safely two times while knocking in a run for the winners.



Bill Walton (left) of Portland and the 76ers' Julius Erving will go at it again tonight in Philadelphia

NBA playoffs

McGinnis may be benched

PHILADELPHIA — Philadelphia 76ers Coach Gene Shue is thinking about replacing slump-ridden George McGinnis in the starting line-up for the fifth game of the National Basketball Association championship series.

The 76ers and the Portland Trail Blazers are tied 2-2 in the best - of - seven playoff, each team winning on its home court. The fifth game is here tonight, the sixth in Portland Sunday, and a seventh, if necessary in Philadelphia June 8.

Shue made it clear that he had not decided on whether to start Steve Mix in place of McGinnis.

"I was asked what my thoughts might be in that area and I left it open," Shue said. "I am considering it. It is a possibility."

The thought here is that Shue will stay with McGinnis, a super star forward who averaged 21 points a game in the regular season, but has been in a deepening playoff slump. In the four games with Portland, he is averaging 9.8 from the floor, a poor 33 per cent, and seven for 13 at the foul line, just 53.7 per cent.

An indication of Shue's thinking could be in the words of Sixers assistant coach Jack McMahon.

"The key (to our chances) is George," McMahon said. "If George continues to play below par, struggle, we're in trouble. If George regains his form we'll win.

"Here we are 2-2. It's a three-game series now and we have the home court advantage. You would think I would be optimistic. But I'm worried. When George breaks out of it, that's the whole key. And there is no sign of it. I don't know the answer," said McMahon forlornly.

McGinnis, who had spoken freely about his perplexing slump, has decided not to talk about it anymore.

"Now it's time to do it or shut up," says the 6-foot-9 star.

Meanwhile, Shue is trying to soft pedal the 76ers' growing reputation as the Bickersons. He's tired of reading about his players criticizing each other and his strategy. He's particularly displeased with what he calls a poor press in Philadelphia.

"I believe in positive thoughts, also facts," the coach said before Thursday's secret practice session. "I do not believe this team has been given its due by the local media ... The tendency all year has been to make this team controversial.

The mst knowledgeable people in basketball around the league, looking from an outside point of view, cannot believe the things they read. This team is so successful."

He doesn't explain, however, what he expects the media to do when Joe Bryant rips Mix, Mix complains about the way he is being used, Lloyd Free and Darryl Dawkins demand to be traded, Julius "Dr. J." Erving criticizes strategy, Doug Collins questions the game plan etc. Should the media look the other way?

Shue says the 76ers seen in the playoffs are a different team than the one that won its conference in regular season play. Then, McGinnis was in form and Free healthy.

"Now we're a team struggling, trying to get the job done with people we didn't use during the regular season," Shue said.

"We expect to come back and play a very good game (Friday). Portland has some momentum. But we lost it quickly after winning the first two. I hope the home court (edge) stands up. I'm looking for a tough game," Shue said.

Erving, who with Collins has carried the 76ers' offensive burden, believes his team's bench strength will be the deciding factor. He notes that Portland's subs came in with a big lead.

"The test of a bench is when they produce in a close game," Erving said. "Our guys will give us a bigger lift. All we have to do is be ourselves and stick with what got us here. There are 20 teams on vacation. We're not..."

The Trail Blazers held their usual open practice, a workman-like session under the watchful eye of Coach Jack Ramsay.

Ramsay said he isn't under any illusions because of the Blazers' 129-107 and 130-98 blowouts in Portland.

"They'll be tough, especially on their home floor, but we can win if we do the things we're capable of doing," Ramsay said.

The Blazers, of course, are counting upon Maurice Lucas, who has averaged 20.7 points per game, shooting 47.9 from the field and collecting 41 rebounds, and big Bill Walton, who has scored at a 19.3 clip and rebounded 16.8 a game,

If you're looking for a barometer on this series, be aware that the two teams have played six times this season and each has won three — at home.

Ramsay has insisted, however, that the Blazers will win anywhere if they play to their capability. He claims they haven't done that here yet.

Archer leads Kemper Open

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — George Archer, on the verge of quitting the tour until he won the Sahara Invitational last fall, birdied his last three holes for a six-under-par 66 that staked him to a one-stroke lead Thursday in the first round of the $250,000 Kemper Open Golf Tournament.

Archer, a former Masters champion, said he'd decided to leave the tour until that 1976 victory.

"That gave me an exemption for this year and that's the only reason I'm out here now," said Archer, who has played poorly since an operation on his left wrist two years ago.

"It was a disaster," he said. "It's a long-time thing to get over. It took away my left side and everything went, putting and everything. I'm still trying to get some distance back. It's coming, but it's slow."

He finished with a rush in the hot, humid weather, however, twice sinking putts in the 20-25 foot range and once hitting a two iron to within four feet for a birdie - birdie - birdie finish that lifted him in front of power-hitting Jim Dent, big Barney Thompson and Tom Weiskopf, tied at 67.

"I'm starting to play the kind of golf I'm capable of playing," said Weiskopf, who hasn't won in two years but managed a nine-birdie, seven under-par 65 in the last round of last week's Atlanta Classic.

Mazzilli's HR sparks Mets

MONTREAL — Lee Mazzilli drove in three runs, two with his first home run of the season, helping the New York Mets beat the Montreal Expos 7-4 Thursday night for their third consecutive victory under unbeaten Manager Joe Torre.

Jerry Koosman, 4-5, with clutch relief from Skip Lockwood in the seventh, was the winner.

New York jumped to a 2-0 lead in the second against loser Dan Warthen, 2-3.

The Mets added two runs in both the fourth and fifth innings to put the game out of reach. Felix Millan's third single of the game drove in their final run in the eighth.

Astros 6, Reds 4 — Art Howe's third consecutive double drove in two runs in the 11th inning last night to give Houston the victory over the host Reds.

Bob Watson slammed a three-run home run in the ninth stanza to tie the game for Houston. Watson opened the 11th with a single and Enos Cabell followed with another.

Howe then doubled to the right field corner, scoring both runners.

Howe came one on a single by Cliff Johnson.

Gene Pentze, 1-0, just back from the minor leagues, worked two innings to notch the victory.

The Astros are now 21-28 and Cincinnati is 23-24 and 10 games behind division-leading Los Angeles.

Is 1977 baseball livelier?

ROLLA, Mo. — The "pitcher" is a compressed air cannon. The target is a wall of wood from which bats are made. The missiles are official American and National league baseballs, vintages 1976 and 77.

From this setup at the University of Missouri-Rolla, two doctors of mathematics and a doctor of mechanical engineering will report to the president of the American League in the next day or so their findings on a weighty and controversial question.

Is this year's baseball livelier than 1976's?

Many major league pitchers swear it is and are irate. Many hitters agree and are delighted. Some fans and doters on statistics are disgusted.

The American League contracted with Dr. Lee Bain and Dr. Max Engelhardt, the math wizards, to make the bounce test.

They already have evaluated the date from test made by the Rawlings Co. of St. Louis, which this year replaced Spalding as the supplier of official baseballs.

The American League wanted a new run, from scratch. Dr. Bain and Dr. Engelhardt called in Dr. Terry Lehnhoff from the university's mechanical engineering school.

With Dick Butler, supervisor of American League umpires, looking on, the doctors last week fired from their cannon six dozen 1976 baseballs and six dozen 1977 baseballs rounded up from clubs around both major leagues.

Radar guns, identical to those used by highway patrolmen and traffic officers to time speeders, checked the velocities of the baseballs just before they hit the target and an instant later as they were bouncing off it.

The American League specified — Dr. Bain doesn't know why and believes it to be of no consequence to the findings — that the balls hit the target at 58 miles an hour, only a little more than half the speed Nolan Ryan has been calculated to put on a fast ball. There were no curves or sliders.

In the interim, Dr. Bain and Dr. Engelhardt have been analyzing the readings. They will make their findings available only to Lee MacPhail, president of the American League.

Niguchi takes LPGA lead

NEW ROCHELLE, N.Y. — Chako Niguchi, No. 1 player in Japan for the last eight years, scored three birdies enroute to a three - under - par 69 Thursday to take the first-round lead in the Ladies Professional Golf Association $100,000 tournament.

Miss Higuchi, only one in the field of 104 to escape without a bogey on the 6,196-yard course at the Wyhagyl Country Club, holds a one-stroke lead over Sandra Palmer.

The 31 - year - old native of Tokyo opened with a 32 and closed with a 39, while Miss Palmer, who sank a five-foot birdie on the final hole, gained her 70 on 34-36.

Miss Palmer, winner of two events on this year's tour, needed that sixth and final birdie to offset four bogeys.

As a result, she finds herself one stroke ahead of defending champion Pat Bradley of Westford, Mass., who was tied with four others for third place at 71.

Michelle Walker of Kent, England; Kathy Ahern and Sally Little, both of Dallas and JoAnn Washam of Orlando, Fla., also wound up with 71s.

Apples Apples

In late April and early May a large, mature apple tree will produce between 50,000 and 100,000 blossoms, in clusters of five or six. If all the blossoms were to set fruit, the tree would produce as many as 800 bushels of small apples. Usually a mere 2 to 5 per cent of the apple blossoms set fruit that develops into maturity, yielding 15 to 30 bushels of apples.

"Happy Days" come for Jane Blalock

NEW ROCHELLE, N.Y. — Jane Blalock has gone through her "five years of hell" and now is enjoying a little bit of heaven.

"I don't know when I have been happier, everything is falling into place again," said the pert, 31-year-old former New England school teacher whose career was almost shattered by charges of cheating lodged by fellow members of the Ladies Professional Golf Association.

"Most of those involved in the incident are now either gone or no longer major factors on the tour. Some have apologized. Some haven't. A wave of new, young girls has moved onto the tour. They're fresh and enthusiastic. They are athletes. Jealousies and animosities are the farthest things from their minds."

Jane, never abandoned by the fans, is one of the favorites in the $100,000 LPGA tournament this weekend at the Wykagyl Country Club. She will be facing some of the players who sought to run her out of the game seven years ago.

"Time heals all wounds," she said. "There is some bitterness left. I don't like to talk about it. They don't like to talk about it. The memory of it is gradually fading away."

Needless to say, Jane was not left without scars.

Under pressure, she talked about it during a cocktail break at the Westchester Country Club. The subject was hard to escape. After all, she had dealt with it quite fully in her autobiography, just published, entitled "The Guts To Win."

The title is apt. She is a gutsy girl. She never bent while her rivals had her spied upon, harrassed and tormented her at almost every turn. Those she thought to be her closest friends suddenly turned on her. She was suspended, ostracized, fined. Many wondered how she was able to endure it.

"I suppose it's my New England upbringing," said Jane, daughter of a Concord,t n.h., newspaper man. "They accuse me of not having a nerve in my body. I hurt inside like anyone else. I just don't show it."

It was 1972, three years after Jane had joined the tour, that her house came tumbling down.

Abruptly one day she was hauled before a committee of her peers and told that she had been found to be illegally improving her lies on the greens. Marlene Bauer Hagge and Louise Suggs, two veteran stars of the tour, signed affidavits accusing Jane of irregularities in tournaments staged two and three years before.

Jane was given a year's suspension and was barred from a tournament in Baltimore before she gained an injunction against the LPGA. Twenty-nine members of the association had signed a petition calling for the suspension. Jane sued.

Harrassment of the young golfer continued in the two years between the suspension in 1972 and the judge's ruling in August 1974 that the LPGA had violated the anti-trust act and should pay Miss Blalock damages ($13,500 plus $300,000 in legal fees).

Jane said Marlene Hagge and Louise Suggs never apologized. Kathy Whitworth and a few others have remained aloof, she said. "But Sandra Palmer stood by me all the way, and so did a few others. And the new kids — they are terrific."

It's just good common sense to want great gas mileage these days. But there are more economies built into these Toyotas than just what you'll save at the gas pump.

Durability. It makes sense to buy a car that'll hold up. Toyotas are built to last. That's why you see so many older Toyotas still on the road.

Reliability. It makes sense to buy a car you can depend on. Toyota built its reputation with reliable cars. For example, you can't buy a new Toyota that doesn't have a transistorized ignition system for dependable starting. And there are 27 different Toyota models to choose from.

Value. It makes sense to buy a car that'll hold its value. A Toyota is like money in the bank, because Toyotas have traditionally high resale value.

*These California EPA results are estimates. The actual mileage you get will vary depending on your driving habits and your car's condition and equipment.

Mariners feel little pressure in win streak

SEATTLE — Winning, in baseball as in other sports, breeds pressure. If you win today, you're expected to win tomorrow.

In the case of the Seattle Mariners, who were expected to beat themselves more often than their American League opponents this season with poor fielding, weak hitting and inept pitching, the past two weeks have produced eight victories in 12 games and a large dose of self-confidence — but little pressure.

"We've been playing sound, fundamental baseball the past two weeks," Seattle Manager Darrell Johnson said Wednesday.

That was before his expansion team fielded poorly, hit weakly and pitched ineptly in a 6-3 loss to Oakland that snapped a club record five-game winning streak.

The Oakland game aside, however, the Mariners have begun to display solid defense, timely hitting and improved pitching, all in the same game and even on the road.

"We're having fun," Johnson said. "We're trying to play as good as we can play."

And that, Rick Langford, Bob Lacey, Vida Blue, Mark Fidrych, Dave Rozema, Steve Foucalt, Gaylord Perry, and Bert Blyleven will tell you, is pretty good.

Seattle beat each of those pitchers in a recent two-week road swing, winning eight of 11 games, including the last five in a row.

Improved pitching has been the key, Johnson says.

"Easily the biggest factor has been the pitching. And it'll get better as we go along," the Mariners' skipper said. "That's a hell of a confidence-builder for the whole team.

"It's a natural thing for ballplayers to put out that extra effort when they know the pitchers are going to keep them in the game. It's awfully hard to look good when you're getting beat 9-3.

"That's pressure to these guys because they know they can do better than that. When you do well I think that eliminates pressure on the individual as well as a team."

While pitchers have been hitting their stride, the Mariners also have completed timely double plays (57 in 52 games), made the outstanding running catch in the outfield and demonstrated the heads-up play that makes opponents pay for base-running errors.

"You don't pre-plan when to play these new guys," said Johnson. "You just sit back and watch them. Pretty soon they'll let you know which ones will do the job. "Some kids who haven't played much big league ball will hit big league pitching. Some won't. To hit .265 as a team, I never had any idea the guys would be able to do that."

Even in view of the improved play, Johnson steadfastly declines to predict how many games his team will win this season. — by Associated Press

Filipinos say 4-H program a bad contract

MODESTO (AP) — Seventy - two Filipinos who came to the United States two years ago to participate in a national 4-H program earned $410,000 in wages but saw $360,000 deducted for "expenses," according to a published report.

In a copyrighted article in Thursday's editions of the Oakland Tribune, many of the young men said they were forced to live in unsanitary conditions, insulted, degraded and threatened by their American hosts.

In Washington, the newspaper quoted national 4-H coordinator Francis Pressly as confirming the $360,000 expense figure but vigorously denying the other assertions.

The Filipinos' complaints were heard by Sister Reina Paz of Stockton, Calif., a nun and native of the Philippines, who turned the matter over to Rep. John McFall, D-Calif. McFall's office launched an investigation and interviewed some of the workers in the San Joaquin Valley.

The Tribune quoted the nun as saying the largest check for the two-year stint went to Edward Jiminez, 27, who got $880. The smallest was for $135.80 to Leonardo Dinggal. "He was shaking and crying when he found out," the woman said. "He had expected to take home more than $1,000 to his family."

Sixty-seven of the Filipinos authorized attorney Stephen Ringhoff to demand an accounting of the wages from the 4-H Foundation.

"We had been told we were going to the states as scholars and would come home as specialists," Manuel Gabaon, 25, told the newspaper. "Instead, we were treated as laborers and herded around like animals."

In Modesto, where the final training session was held, 4-H project manager John Pederson said: "They were here to learn, not earn. And they were told that from the very beginning. Now some of them have conveniently forgotten about it."

Pederson said each trainee was given $65 a month in spending money plus $75 a month food allowance if the host farmer did not provide meals. Each host was directed to send $275 a month in trainee wages to the national 4-H council in Washington to be held until completion of the program.

He said he "absolutely did not believe" one trainee's comment that he had to live in a converted chicken coop with no sanitary facilities.

'Junk food' bill wins favor

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A ban on sales of "junk food" — candy bars, sugared gum and soft drinks — in elementary schools and junior highs was narrowly approved by an Assembly committee Thursday.

The bill by Assemblyman Art Torres, D-Los Angeles, wouldn't apply to high schools, some of which let students use candy sales to buy things like band uniforms. It would, however, require high schools to sell nutritious foods like milk, fruits and juices.

In lower grades, it would rule out sales of candy, carbonated drinks, gum with sugar, fruit drinks containing less than 50 per cent fruit juice, and flavored ice bars. It wouldn't prohibit sales of ice cream.

The bill is AB 1755.

Dublin's vote

We would not want this week's round of "special elections" to pass without a word of commendation to the people of Dublin.

"Measure C" was not an easy ballot question, at best. Administered by a housing authority based in Pleasanton, tied to a World War that virtually no Dublinites of today can identify with, Komandorski Village was little better than an uncertain question mark on the fringe of a new, busy village of single family homes.

The plan to replace Komandorski with a modern complex of low - rent dwelling units was commendable, as this newspaper observed; but we also made note of the difficult burden being assigned to Dublin, and only to Dublin, in that ballot proposal.

Dublinites rose above the question, shoved aside some subtle hints of bigotry, and gave a clear mandate to the Pleasanton Housing Authority: Replace Komandorski Village with 150 units of attractive housing for low - income families.

Now it remains for the Pleasanton Housing Authority to keep faith with the people of Dublin and of Pleasanton, and with all those who would reside in that new housing project. The real test will come in sound administration, responsive management, and a feeling of "community" which can develop within that project, if the people are given a chance.

Dublin has taken one courageous step forward; it's up to others to match that courage.

Filth's freedom

This nation is built upon the strength of its freedoms, foremost of which is that enjoyed by the press, and by extension all those who would speak or publish any idea or argument to be shared with others.

That freedom has been abused in recent times by those who see an opportunity to force offensive language or crude behavior onto the public, while hiding their actions behind the guarantee of "free speech."

That abuse was flagrantly displayed in a recent hearing before a Congressional Committee looking into the sordid subject of "children forced into pornographic acts by those who display photos of those acts in their magazines."

When one publisher of porno material was summoned as "an expert witness" before that Senate Committee, he cautioned his inquisitors — "You are treading here on the guarantee of freedom given all of the press."

Baloney! Our forefathers wrote such guarantees into the Constitution, and later into the Bill of Rights in order to assure a free exchange of information and ideas, most particularly in the realm of politics and religion. Never was there any intent of, protecting those who would pervert small children in order to peddle their filthy magazines and films.

The erosion of a nation's mores has advanced as each new book, movie or television show is put forward under the guise of "a peoples' right to choose." Now we see that same "right" imposed on small boys and girls who have no choice, but who are violated — perhaps for life — by the "freedom" which society would guarantee to sick adults.

What is needed now is a Bill of Rights guaranteeing every American citizen, of whatever age, freedom from the filth which others scatter across our land.

Fighting fires

The president of a local firefighters union puts up a strong case for added manpower, but in so doing confuses us with his belated pitch for a tax override allot measure which the same union had earlier declined to support.

Dennis Laurence writes "to the editor" as president of Local 1974, International Association of Firefighters. His concern is for the Pleasanton firefighters whom he represents; but the case he makes can apply to any municipal fire department, or any important function of local government, for that matter.

"The real issue is not whether we need manpower," Laurence writes, "but how we should get it." If this means (as The Times reported earlier) that the Pleasanton Firefighters Local rejected the 29 cent tax override because it was an unfair way of financing a service that should come from the city council's budgetary considerations over several years, then we agree!

This newspaper opposed special tax measures for city safety services (both in Livermore and later in Pleasanton) because: 1. They are costly; 2. They were poorly conceived and inadequately presented to the voters; and 3. Because they set the stage for countless other special tax measures to meet "urgent needs."

Since Councilman Frank Brandes was the admitted sponsor of Pleasanton's tax override question, we feel he must carry the burden when that proposal generates no meaningful support, not even from Pleasanton Firefighters Local 1974.

Exactly where all that leaves Mr. Laurence and his view of editors who are "experts on nothing with opinions on everything," we don't profess to know. But events of the last few months do suggest the Pleasanton Firefighters are not getting very good advice; and that profits no one, least of all the community.

FOCUS/'Gay' wrongs

Florida juice

One of the more repulsive and oppressive actions occuring in the Bay Area — and in other areas including Dade County, Florida — is the act of homosexuals and their media sympathizers to discredit, if not defeat, a measure concerning their ilk in the Florida community.

In a frenzied rush to defeat this measure, which allegedly would contain known homosexuals from teaching public school children in Dade County, Florida, the "gay" community and their supporters have trampled head-long over the rights and sensibilities of all other members of the community.

And if estimates are correct, this represents anywhere from 75 to 95 per cent of the rest of the populace.

In the process, they have libeled and defamed a woman by the name of Anita Bryant, best known for her outspoken views on the Dade County measure, and also known for her Florida orange juice commercial spiel on television. Before that, some years back, Miss Bryant was a Miss America Pageant entrant from Oklahoma.

Foremost in the Bay Area protest of alleged abuse of "gay rights" represented in this measure has been Sheriff Richard Hongisto of San Francisco County.

The citizens of San Francisco deserve Hongisto and he deserves them....as Hongisto was quick-stepping in and about the "gay" community before being elected.

His upholding and carrying out of the laws of that area have been singularly unsuccessful since his term of office began.

To be fair, the record of Chief Charles Gain and his predecessor have been somewhat short of mediocre in the matter of law enforcement in San Francisco.

Hongisto announced a couple weeks back he was considering going down to Dade County, Florida, to speak up for the poor, defenseless and put-upon homosexuals.

Presumably, Hongisto would take wing and fly to Florida.

It would seem that if there are any defenseless, put-upon persons in this epic, it's the "straight" or heterosexual populace. Which, as noted earlier, is a vast majority of the populace.

Frankly, I am fed up with the "jokes" about Anita Bryant, the ban-Florida Orange Juice business, and the "gay-rights-are-being-abused" malarkey.

I have read in metro dailies and heard on television that Miss Bryant is nothing short of a tyrant and that she is championing a fascist-like cause.

What I haven't read or heard about in recent weeks is the other side of the issue!

The Bryant side of the measure.

Which is what one comes to expect in a liberal/authoritarian society....just one side of the issue.

If it will serve to lighten a rather intense subject, I find myself eager (when confronted with such issues) to go out and buy all the Florida Orange Juice I can lay my hands on.

Or purchase as much non-union lettuce or Gallo wine as available.

And if anyone out there knows Miss Bryant's whereabouts, I'd like to meet the lady.

For I support her efforts on behalf of the great majority of citizens.

Symphony Guild

Editor, The Times:
The Livermore-Amador Symphony and Guild are thanking you and your staff for your coverage of our season concerts and fundraisers.

As usual the copy and the pictures published by your paper helped make this seasons concerts well attended and our fundraisers money making events.

We are looking forward to this continuous relationship for following seasons. Many thanks.

Perfect attendance

Editor, The Times:
In your newspaper, of May 26, 1977, you had a picture of a student named Doug Hawk, from Dublin High School, who had just completed a perfect attendance record of the 4th grade, through the 12th grade. The article also asked to the effect if anyone could beat that record; I believe I am eligible. I completed 12 years of perfect attendance, on June 1st, 1949; our graduation date. And my brother, Glenn, also had completed 10 years of perfect attendance, until in his Sophmore year, he got a severe case of the flu, and that was the first time he had ever missed school. We went to school, in Leetonia, Ohio, a small town 20 miles south of Youngstown, Ohio. I do have the newspaper clippings about my perfect attendance record, but I don't have the certificate presented to me, with me; I still have a lot of my things stored at my family's home, in Leetonia.

But I can show you the newspapers if you want further proof.

Holdener's sign

Editor, The Times:
After reading the account of the City Council action regarding the Holdener Dairy sign controversy, I cannot help but make a few comments.

1. When one surveys the vast number of vacant or near-moribund business properties in the older sections of the City, it appears to be the mission of the majority of the City Council to drive all activity into the newer, more regulated shopping areas.

2. It also appears that in matters pertaining to decisions which would help small business, the Council majority is totally devoid of good sense.

3. I would suggest that the combined talents of the Council be directed toward assisting business rather than nit picking regarding the legal aspects of a case which has the ample support of the people. A family-operated business in Livermore for over twenty years deserves a better fate than it is receiving at the present time.

4. Most city residents are aware of the problems confronting the Council; however, it seems that once elected to office the majority of the Council isolates itself from the electorate, except for a chosen few whose views coincide with the accepted "General Plan". That is to say any Plan of action which meets the approval of the ruling group in City Government.

The firefighters

Editor, The Times:
Following the recent editorials and statements in the newspapers, we would like to express our views on the Tax Override and manpower issue.

Do you consider 7 - 8 men on duty in 3 fire stations for the entire city adequate? ... when we have an alarm which utilizes all three engine companies, leaving the areas across town from that alarm virtually uncovered for any type of emergency? Remember, the emergency recall is ... no guarantee that enough or any off - duty reserve personnel will show up.

Firefighting is the most dangerous occupation in the U.S. A firefighter has a 50 percent chance of being injured ... their death rate is 15 percent greater than the next most dangerous occupations — mining and quarrying.

On two most recent alarms, of the almost 1000 answered per year, one an apartment at Komandorski and one at the Security Vault Co., our firefighters suffered two injuries. At Komandorski, a man from a 2 - man engine co., alone in a totally envolved apartment, just knocked the fire down then fell through a hole in the floor ... He suffered a back injury and ... required special therapy. One can only speculate as to what would have been the result if he had not been able to knock the fire down before he fell.

The real issue is not whether or not we need manpower, but how we should get it.

The senior members of the City Council have apparently felt additional manpower, i.e. better citizen and firefighter protection, was not important enough to budget for in the past. Perhaps they have been advised by the same "experts" that advise newspaper editors.

As far as Councilman Brandes fulfilling a "campaign promise," perhaps this is true. After all he did promise he would try to make Pleasanton a safer and better place in which to live. We wish all council persons would strive as hard to fulfill their promises.

It seems Pleasanton is indeed ruled by experts — to quote one of your fellow journalists, "Experts on nothing with opinions on everything."

round the town

As it is with most of us, there was a Royal Theater in my life.

Or call it the Bijou, or the Rex, or simply "The Cinema." By whatever name, it made up a big part of life, in those emerging years.

I had occasion to return to Moose Jaw, few years ago. Things hadn't changed that much, really.

Except that the Royal Theater was no more. Gone. Obliterated. Or, more accurately, burned to the ground. The blackened hunks of wood thinly coverd by a veil of snow that could only add to the stark horror of that scene.

"It deserved a better fate," I said to myself. That thought shook me up, really. Because the Royal Theater was never all that great. Fire trap from the day it was built, I suspect. But a man measures his heritage not so much in quality, as in endurance. And we need the show places of our youth to endure, somehow.

These thoughts went parading through my head the other night. As we sat watching a spirited performance of "Annie Get Your Gun." Debbie Reynolds and crew were scintilatingly wonderful. But it was the setting for that stage production which really won me over.

The Orpheum Theater on Upper Market was just one more movie palace from San Francisco's past, and like all the others, dieing in the wake of Downtown San Francisco's latter - day indifference to The Big Movie.

The Orpheum was something more. A throw back to vaudeville, truth be known. When that place was called "The Pantages", and when the high - born from a dozen Bay Area communities would assemble at these ornate show houses to enjoy the world's finest entertainers ... on stage and screen.

It was perhaps the memory of all that which inspired a move to "save the Orpheum!" ... or the Pantages, as you will. Saving old buildings is not something San Francisco does easily. Property taxes make "marginal downtown investments" unattractive to owners. Better to blast the thing down and replace it with a profitable stack of parking stalls.

So they did not blast down the Orpheum, nee Pantages. They revived it instead, to live another day, to serve a new generation, with stage productions which could have been a two weeks' holdover of something the Pantages was offering, fifty years ago.

The New Orpheum seats 2600, most comfortably. The guilded trim of the 20's is still evident. Nostalgia hangs heavy from the ornate walls, the sculpted ceiling. It is a fine place to sit back and enjoy "Annie Get Your Gun", and to remember how it was, and how it must have been ...

Our dinner before the show was at Fox Plaza. The name is borrowed from yet another San Francisco landmark — the Fox Theatre. Ah, now there was a real palace.

Opened in 1929 to the plaudits of an adoring nation. "The largest and most glamorous movie house west of Chicago." Rising ten stories above Market Street. Seating for 5000.

Fox Theatre was decorated in the period of Louis XIV and Louis XV. The rose and gold rug in the lobby was the largest single piece ever woven.

And so they destroyed it. Sold off the bricks and the bric - a - brac. Built an "office and apartment complex" in its stead. 21st Century plastic.

So if you should chance to visit the New Orpheum, to partake perhaps of a Civic Light Opera production. Give thanks for those who had vision enough to look back 50 years. And to save the old Pantages. So that our own memories might live again, a little.

The Paramount in Oakland is in truth an even finer center for the performing arts. Seating some 3000 in incomparable comfort. Marvelous acoustics. Huge stage.

But, regrettably, the Oakland Symphony which holds forth at the Paramount is not near so grand as the revamped show house. Boring, at its best. Pompous when it matches the mood of the symphony's director.

And so, naturally, there is talk of the Oakland Symphony "not being able to make it." Talk further of "what will then happen to this lovely show house?" The building cannot survive by itself, unto itself. There must be talent and vitality and community identification to make it all come together.

I hope the Paramount Theater survives. I have no hope whatsoever for its major tenant.

That was the trouble with the Royal Theater in Moose Jaw, Sask. It thrived as long as Tom Mix and Buck Jones and Hoot Gibson thrived. When those heroes of my youth faded away, so too the show houses they helped create were neglected, forgotten, left to burn away like so many unwanted dreams.

It was nice to dream once again, in The Orpheum of San Francisco.

PAT KENNEDY

The stray

Getting up early for a Little League game is reason enough to stumble.

But there's something tripping me up as I wend my way down Rincon Avenue to the game.

Don't look. You know what it is. That thing you've always dreaded — a stray.

Walk faster. Run! The little black kitten throws itself at my hiking boot laces.

It doesn't take my 7 - year - old long. "Mommy! C'n we keep him?"

"Of course not. He's probably somebody's pet." (Thinks: Scruffy little thing. Looks like it needs a good meal.)

"Can we just take him to watch the game?"

"I think we'd better put him over here on this lawn. He probably lives here." (Thinks: Looks like nobody's even home here.)

"Now let's dash across this street so he doesn't follow." Of course the all - black, bad - luck little creature, who attaches himself to us just nine hours after Friday the Thirteenth has drawn to a close, rockets to the far side of the street ahead of one plodding adult and one straggling little girl.

Rachel Kennedy is under strict orders not to pick up the stray. So she just walks slowly and calls it when it loses interest in her.

She is under strict orders to ask everybody in the bleachers at all three playing fields whether they recognize it. But who would part a little girl and a purring kitten?

The whole show provides endless merriment for other mothers in the Round Table Pizza team's bleachers. "Looks like you got yourself a kitten!" "Reminds me of our first stray; now we have three." "I recommend Meow Mix."

No sooner is big brother up at bat than the kitten is in my face.

"He's hungry."...Strike one!..." Can we get him something at the snack bar?"...Ball!..." Can I have some money?"...Strike two!

"Can I take him home just to feed him?"...Low ball into center field. Slide! Slide!

Whew, safe at first. I turn around. Cat and cat lover are vanishing down the path in a cloud of dust.

That was how Mao adopted us. Of course, she (a cursory inspection led us to believe this was a kitten of the fairer sex) chose the week we all would come down with flu. Also the week our "no pets" landlord would make his only visit.

Maoie liked her new name because she thought we were speaking kitten language when we called her. She also liked the finest cat food, she preferred a certain spot in the garage to her litter box and she chose the sofa for her scratching post.

She didn't especially like the backyard, since on one side of our fence there was a Doberman panting to get at her while the adjacent yard boasted a pair of German shepherds.

When at last we realized we were bona fide kitten owners, there was the trip to the vet any conscientious pet owner has to make. Actually there would have been four trips, adding up to $71 over the next six months, if we had gone the whole route.

That was our first shock. Our second was a coy announcement by the vet after peering under her tail: "It's a little boy."

Apparently all the talk about neutering freaked out Maoie because the next afternoon he made good his escape.

His unscheduled departure from our backyard left a little hole in the psyche of his 7 - year - old mistress. She has been trying to plug it up by carrying home an astonishing variety of dogs and cats the minute they stray from their yards without ID.

Luckily, they all go home again. So far.

"Now, I ask you — what's wrong with the environment? Nothing — that's what! Just look around!"

Dr. Joyce Brothers

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: My teenagers are avid rock fans. This never bothered me until I sat down to listen to the lyrics. I was shocked. I found them immoral and disgusting. It so upset me that I haven't been able to feel quite the same about my kids ever since. Naturally, I haven't told them about my reactions to the lyrics. I'm very upset and don't quite know what my course of action should be. — L.J.

DEAR L.J.: You're not the only one who finds some rock lyrics offensive, but it may be of some comfort to know that studies indicate most youngsters pay relatively little attention to these lyrics. They may not even hear them because they focus on the rhythm and the general emotional and sensual mood provided by the music.

Certainly both the music and the lyrics, however, are a reflection of a new, much more sexually permissive life style. I believe the lyrics also reflect the teenagers' open rebellion against the authority of the adult world.

Some lyrics degrade women and seem to deny any tender feelings that are not explicitly sexual. Some lyricists are becoming aware of the fact that their lyrics often deny love and intimacy and are reflecting a more mature view of life and love. You might surprise your youngsters with some new records with this type of lyric.

If you do, don't be too shocked if they don't seem to notice the difference. According to findings of a team of researchers at the University of Michigan, young people are much more interested in sound than in the meaning of the lyrics.

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: Our daughter's grades have dropped this term. We've let her know we're angry and disappointed by taking away special privileges. Now we just don't know what else to do. We want our children to be winners and we've stressed that second best isn't good enough. There's no other way to make a child excel. This worked with our other children but this one is withdrawing from us. My wife thinks I'm wrong but this kid is a daydreamer and I know she just dreams at school. She had potential, she's just not using it. — M.C.

DEAR M.C.: When parents push too hard they rob their youngsters of some of the pleasures of childhood, one of which is daydreaming. If a child isn't allowed to take the time away from the real world of homework long enough to fantasize, to dream of anything he wishes, he's being deprived of an essential freedom.

Furthermore, children should learn that failure is often a step to learning and can be a necessary part of discovery. Parents who goad their children and insist that they always "win" may be stunting their creativity. One of the easiest ways to be a "winner," especially in the school room, is to stay in line, to go along with the group and to perform in the expected way. Sometimes, the unexpected can be productive. Sometimes, an error can be more illuminating than the "correct" approach.

First of all, children don't need parents to tell them they've failed at a certain task. They usually know it long before their parents. Help your daughter build a successful picture of herself now and you'll be helping her avoid important failures in the future. Let her know you trust and believe in her. And remind her that innovation and creativity often come out of a series of trials and errors. To be always perfect is impossible. Even if it were possible, it might lessen inventiveness and originality.

Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB — Can you give me some information on viral hepatitis? The doctor treated my daughter with antibiotics for two weeks for what he thought was a sinus infection and when she turned yellow he said it was viral hepatitis. She is on a high protein and low fat diet and is to do absolutely nothing for 30 days. She is 28 and married and lives out of state.

Do you have a leaflet on this? Does it linger after the 30 days and is it hard to shake off? Is it infectious? How does it differ from infectious hepatitis? Is it more dangerous in young people than older adults? Are there other precautions to take?

DEAR READER — Viral hepatitis and infectious hepatitis are the same thing and there are two types — the kind that is commonly transmitted by food or water and the kind transmitted commonly by blood transfusions or infected needles (serum hepatitis). One of the main differences is the length of time it takes to develop the infection after the virus has entered the body. The food-borne type occurs much earlier.

Your daughter's story is rather familiar. Before jaundice develops the patient may have many symptoms of other virus diseases, particularly resembling influenza or gastroenteritis. Unless an epidemic is in process the doctor is not likely to guess that a flu-like illness is really the start of hepatitis.

In fact there are many more cases of infectious hepatitis than is ever diagnosed. Why? Because there is a mild form that behaves like other virus diseases and jaundice never develops at all. This mild form is more apt to occur in individuals who have had infectious hepatitis before and have some immunity or in infants or children.

There is evidence that patients with hepatitis do better at bed rest. Apparently this has something to do with the changes in circulation to the liver when you are sitting up as compared to lying down. Patients with jaundice are usually kept at bed rest. When they become too active too soon there is usually a relapse in the course of the disease.

There is no magic number of days for bed rest or resumption of activity. Doctors usually make this decision based on tests that evaluate liver function. As the liver function improves the jaundice recedes and the tests improve. When they show little evidence of liver disease the person's activity is increased.

Obviously the more severe the initial damage to the liver and the longer it takes to control the viral infection the longer will be the bed rest and the disability. And it is not uncommon for a person to lack energy for some time after initial recovery from the illness. With suitable rest and time most people with viral hepatitis recover completely.

Q. "HOW DOES A RATTLESNAKE RATTLE?"
KAREN RYAN
PLEASANTON, CA
A. THE RATTLE IS A SERIES OF HORNY SEGMENTS LOOSELY JOINED TOGETHER. IT MAKES A SHARP BUZZING SOUND WHEN THE SNAKE SHAKES IT.

It's easy to recognize a rattlesnake by the rattle at the end of its tail. The rattle is a series of dry, horny, cup-shaped rings that fit loosely into one another.

When a rattlesnake rattles, it's usually because it has become alarmed. This makes it vibrate its tail rapidly. The hollow rings, or "rattles," strike together and make a sharp buzzing sound.

By making its rattling noise, the snake is able to warn away creatures that might harm it. Although a rattlesnake often gives a warning before it strikes, it may also strike without rattling.

A new rattle is formed on the snake's tail each time it sheds its skin. But that doesn't mean you can tell the age of the snake by the number of its rattles, for a snake sheds its skin three or four times a year.

Also, as the snake grows older, the end rattles break off. An adult rattlesnake usually has from 6 to 10 rattles.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You could be involved in a financial situation with another today. You stand to come out on top, but your counterpart's feelings may be deeply wounded.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Although your ideas have merit today, it's possible you may not present them with enough clarity to gain the cooperation they deserve.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Use your ingenuity today in such a way that you give value for what you receive. Don't hope to get something for nothing.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) In a vain attempt to make yourself look good in front of a new friend you may do something to put your mate in an unfavorable light. This is a mistake.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You start out like gangbusters today, but given the smallest excuse you'll pack your tools away and leave the work till tomorrow.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) A recent acquaintance who impresses you should be kept at arm's length today. Don't form any business partnerships or lend him money.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Be willing to share with others who have done the same for you. Later you'll harbor regrets if you're parsimonious with them today.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) For one who normally has the courage of your convictions, you are unduly swayed by others today. Your best ideas could go down the drain.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Something advantageous could pass you by because you bring persons into the act who don't belong. Think before casting today's players.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) It's too soon to press an influential contact you've recently met for help in an ambitious venture. Premature pleas could end the relationship.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Many times it doesn't pay to act on impulse. Today it may be better to move quickly. The more you analyze, the less assertive you'll be.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You should not pry too deeply into a pal's affairs today. This person has secrets he may validly not want you to know at this time.

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Practically every pair in the Olympiad bid the heart slam. Not that they indulged in such simple bidding as we show in the box. Still, they all got to the 20 per cent slam. All but two players made it by the simple expedient of taking the heart finesse, then laying down the ace of hearts and dropping the king and jack together.

Both players who failed to make the slam were tripped up by the nine of hearts. One man led the 10 of hearts from dummy and East covered with the king. West disdained a false card and dropped the nine. Now the unfortunate declarer decided that East had been dealt king-jack-six. He returned to dummy, led a heart, finessed the eight and lost to West's jack.

The other declarer went down because Benito Garrozzo of Italy opened that nine of hearts. Again East's king fell to South's ace. Again declarer went to dummy to finesse against that jack and again the jack showed up in the West hand to defeat the slam.

Talks with oil, chemical industries

Eastern team urges West to recycle heavy water use

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A team of Eastern industrialists has arrived here with a message for the drought - plagued West: water pollution is bad for business.

The Easterners are launching a campaign to sell California businesses on the idea of cleaning up their water enough so they can recycle it instead of dumping it back into streams and reservoirs.

Representatives of Calgon Corp. of Pittsburgh, Pa., told a recent news conference that they believe their system of carbon filters could allow some industries to recycle as much as 80 per cent of their wastewater. They said they are talking with representatives of oil refineries, chemical and textile plants.

Thomas A. McConomy, general manager of the corporation's Environmental Systems Division, said in the past it's been cheaper for companies to dump the water instead of recycling it.

"That's fine as long as there is plenty of fresh water to go around," he said. "Unfortunately, that's no longer the case. With water rationing already imposed in some areas and threatened in others, every drop counts."

He said costs to industries to clean up their water for recycling could range from $2 to $3 per thousand gallons. A typical industrial customer in the East Bay Municipal Utility District, where water rates recently went up sharply to reflect increased costs because of the drought, pays about 50 cents per thousand gallons.

"As water becomes short, the $2 to $3 per thousand gallons is a reasonable price to pay," McConomy said.

Under the system, dirty water is passed through carbon granules porous enough to absorb pollutants. The process removes only organic pollutants like bacteria, however, and could not be used, say, to raise the quality of salty water from the San Juaquin - Sacramento Valley Delta.

McConomy said the system could be used by municipal water systems to clean up the algae - laden water that begins pouring out of household taps as reservoirs are drained near the bottom. This happened for several days in April in Oakland and other areas served by the East Bay Municipal Utility District.

Carbon filtration systems, first used by the ancient Egyptians 3,000 years ago, already are in use by municipal water systems of 60 cities around the world and industrial plants in 19 states.

Although California law prohibits recycling of water from sewer to tap, many cities are beginning to use recycled water for other purposes.

In South Lake Tahoe, sewage treated with carbon filtration and a number of other steps is pumped 27 miles for reuse in another recreation area, Indian Creek Reservoir.

The state Department of Health guidelines for water recycled from reclaimed sewage sets the strictest standards for treated water used for swimming and recreation projects.

Standards are progressively lower for agricultural irrigation, landscape watering and industrial use. Henry J. Ongerth, sanitary engineer for the state health department, said standards are being developed for using reclaimed sewer water to recharge supplies of water beneath the ground, which is not now permitted.

As the drought worsens, cities are looking for new ways to use their reclaimed sewer water. Parts of San Francisco's huge Golden Gate Park are irrigated with recycled water, and the East Bay district has been approached by state agencies wanting to buy some of its treated water, normally discharged into the San Francisco Bay, in watering plants along the highways.

South of San Francisco, the Santa Clara Valley Water District last month dedicated a $6.5 million sewage treatment plant that uses carbon filtration, among other processes, to treat sewage for use in watering parks and golf courses. Lloyd Fowler, chief district engineer, said the pipeline to be used to transport the treated water should be completed by July 1.

But Nobel laureate Dr. Joshua Lederberg, a Stanford University geneticist, said he thinks the effects of carbon filtering should be studied further before it is put into wide use.

"It may be a miracle," he conceded. "But I'm suspicious of miracles."

He pointed out that chlorination of drinking water has virtually wiped out diseases like typhoid as a major health problem, but recently scientists have learned that chlorine combines with other chemicals in water to form compounds scientists suspect of causing cancer.

He said carbon is very complex chemically and scientists don't understand either how it absorbs organic pollutants or how the pollutants might be released from the carbon. He said the Food and Drug Administration recently banned carbon black as a food additive because of similar questions.

He said he is putting together a group of researchers at Stanford who will try to answer these questions about water purified with carbon filters.

Public TV show pegs unwed teens

LOS ANGELES (AP) — On public TV tonight in many cities, the Public Broadcasting Service is airing a 60-minute documentary with the provocative title, "Guess Who's Pregnant?".

Made by station WTTW in Chicago, it studies the increase in pregnancy among unwed teen-age girls in America, public attitudes toward that and sex education, and what is or isn't being done about the problem.

According to Michael Hirsh, who coproduced and wrote the show with Elayne Goldstein, the program had its origins in a radio talk show he hosts once a month on ABC-owned WLS in Chicago.

Teen-age sex was the topic of one show he did last summer, he said, and "it became apparent from the calls I'd get that kids are sexually active at younger and younger ages, at 14 and 15 years old.

"And they were incredibly ignorant," he added, citing as an example one teen-aged girl who called to ask: "'Is it true you can't get pregnant if you make love standing up?'

"So I went back to WTTW and said, 'We've got to do something about this,'" he said.

It led to a local pilot show on teen-aged sex, then a full-scale documentary costing $80,000, half paid from WTTW's funds, half from an outfit called the Van Amerlingen Foundation, Hirsh said.
